HON. JAMES G. BLAINE,

EDITORIAL BRIEFS.

VOORHEESS has not succeeded in stopping the exodus as yet.

IT is the election in November that counts, not the nomination.

ONE thing is certain—Washburn won't have to write any more letters of declination.

WITHOUT the unit rule in force the third term supporters would have less than a third of the Chicago convention.

THE Democratic Congress is not ready to adjourn yet. There are several villages in the South that are without a post office, custom house and arsenal.

THE Democrats are perfectly willing to exchange the fraud issue with the third-term issue, and the Republicans seems to be disposed to humor them.

WITH New York and Indiana the Democrats can elect their President this year. Is the Republican party going to help them do this by placing in nomination a candidate who runs a great risk of losing the States? We cannot think so.

IT's about time for some one to start another report about Tilden's health. It would seem that he had been allowed to enjoy good health for the past few weeks, and we shall expect soon to hear of his being prostrated with some new disease, with a withdrawal rumor following close behind.

NOTHING is lacking now but a sufficient amount of public interest and financial backing to make the New York World's Fair project move forward to a successful realization. The further organization of the enterprise will proceed in due time in accordance with the act of Congress. A call will soon be issued by the Secretary of State for a meeting of the commissioners named in the act, and those to be appointed as the representatives of States and Territories. Stock subscription books will then be opened, and if the minimum amount prescribed is offered by the end of September, a permanent organization will be formed, a site selected, and the work of erecting buildings begun.

CONCERNING the action of the Illinois Convention, the Chicago Journal says: "There are those, no doubt, who think that under the lead of the valorous Logan the Grant cause has won a 'glorious victory;' but the truth is that, in effect, it has sustained a disastrous defeat. The Convention of General Grant's own State was carried for him only by bulldozing and a disregard of the rights of the Republicans of at least eight Congressional districts. Beyond dispute there is a very large and determined opposition to the third term in Illinois. We would, if we could, persuade every Republican to waive his objections to the third term in case of Grant's nomination. It is idle, however, to talk about that, or to expect any such thing. The worst has not yet come. The storm at Springfield was by no means a 'clearing up shower.' The intolerence, unfairness and lawlessness of the bulldozers have intensified the hostility. We wish it were otherwise, but when rash men sow the wind, they must expect to reap the whirlwind."

War Between Russia and China.

It begins to look very much as though Russia and China are in earnest, and have concluded to measure swords.

It was at first predicted in England and Germany that Russia would act on the defensive, and content herself with simply maintaining armed possession of Kuldja, repelling any attempt by the Chinese to retake it. General Skobeleff, whom Wednesday's dispatches name as the probable commander-in-chief on the frontier, is not likely to be selected to carry out a defensive policy. The ships of war which were built for Russia last year in Philadelphia are ordered to the Chinese shores.

The Russian newspapers have recently given an account of the army and navy of China intended to inspirit their own people with an idea of the weakness and inefficiency of the force they had to meet. The Chinese ships were stated to be badly constructed and poorly manned; the Chinese officers ignorant and inefficient. Even this account, however, credits the Chinese navy with seventeen gunboats, built or bought in England, besides corvettes and nine steamers, all officered by foreigners. In addition to these are the old-fashioned screw junks and transport ships, commanded and manned by natives. The Chinese army available for service is stated to consisted of the first army corps, 123,000 men; the Emperor's corps, 36,500 men; and the Green Banner army, 658,000 men. About 60,000 of these are reported to be thoroughly armed, drilled, and trained in European tactics; the rest, the Russians console themselves by stating, are a disorganized mob, obliged to support themselves outside of military duty by working at trades.

It is very difficult to get at any accurate idea of the real force or training of this army, but it is certain that the "disorganized hordes" which China poured into Kashgar and Chinese Turkestan have managed to win back in twenty years every foot of territory of which she was robbed by Taranchis, Tungans, or Russians, excepting this district of Kuldja; and have won them back, too, by a patient endurance of hardships, a skill and dogged courage which have few parallels in military history. China, too, has shown herself not only willing but eager for this war with her great Eastern rival, to gain the last of her lost territory without paying for it; and both army and navy have been carefully preparing for the struggle for years. Chinese officers have for a long time, been attached to Prussian regiments with the view to carrying back home all foreign improvements in the art of war. Russia will probably find before the autumn that she has literally "waked up a Tartar," instead of the traditional mild, tricky and cowardly Chinaman.

THE late prominent banker, Joseph Seligman, will be remembered as the man who was selected by Judge Hilton as the representative of the whole Jewish race for proscription at Saratoga in the matter of hotel accommodations. Respectable and liberal people of all nationalities protested against the action of Judge Hilton and denounced it as unworthy of this age of liberality and religous tolerance. We are glad to notice that Mr. Seligman, the Israelite, was a much more liberal and tolerant man than Judge Hilton, the professed Christian, as is shown by the bequests to charitable institutions provided for in his will. Among other bequests of a nonsectarian nature, we notice an item of $25,000 "to be distributed by his executors among such charitable benevolent and educational institutions as they shall think best, without regard to creed, race or religion." And this is a provision in the will of the man who was referred to by Judge Hilton as an "offensive Jew," unfit to occupy space or eat at same table with the alleged high toned and aristocratic people who patronize the hotel at Saratoga controlled by Judge Hilton. Mr. Seligman could not have administered a severer rebuke to Judge Hilton and those who may have endorsed his proscription of "the Jew banker," that is contained in the few lines above quoted from Mr. Seligman's will. He has demonstrated that he comes nearer the true Christian's standard of true Christian charity and benevolence than the man who proscribed him because he was "a Jew." Mr. Seligman was able to make large bequests, and it is gratifying to know that he did not confine his charities to institutions controlled by his own race and creed, but remembered all alike. Christian institutions will not hesitate to accept the benefits conferred because they are the bounty of an Israelite.

WASHINGTON.

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 20, '80

All the appropriation bills but two are now in progress through the House or Senate, and all will be passed before the last of next week, so good judges say. Of course little else can be done, but if this can be done the end is near, and the country will excuse Congress for doing very little if it will adjourn too early to do any mischief.

There are many who want the bill to change and establish beyond dispute the method of counting the electoral vote to be acted upon this session so as to be operative after the next election, but it is hardly probable an agreement can be arrived at. The Republicans have one plan, the correct one, and the Democrats another. The Republicans wish, in disputed cases to let the State in dispute decide for itself which return is the valid one. This is a true States Rights bill, and if consistency was a Democratic virtue it would support this measure. But the Democratic plan is to put the whole matter of disputes into the hands of the Democratic majority for decision. There is no time for debate, and both plans may as well be abandoned for the present.

I have said all through the session that there was no chance for any financial or revenue legislation, and my prediction will prove true, unless all signs fail. There is no time now for deliberation upon these or any other important subjects. Politicians monopolize the day.

The great Hanlan-Courtney race came off on the Potomac here yesterday, and was witnessed by over one hundred thousand people. In reality it was no race, Hanlan had things all his own way. In fact, Courtney did not pull over the whole course, but turned around when half way down, and pulled leisurely back to his boat House. He feigned sickness as the cause of his ignominious defeat, but the excuse is not received with favor, and has added greatly to his unenviable reputation of unreliability. Courtney was in plain words, frightened; the confidence and pluck of Hanlan unnerved him, and it is said that he was so nervous that he did not sleep a wink the night before the race. Thousands of dollars changed hands, and those who bet on Courtney are loud in their denunciations of him. The delegation from Union Springs, N. Y. who backed Courtney, go home "broken" while the Hanlan Toronto delegation go home "flush." We may have another race here next week between Hanlan and Riley. PHIL.

THE unexpected collapse of the Reading Railroad Company and of the Reading Coal and Iron Company caused temporary consternation to prevail in monetary cicles, but did not result as disastrously to the banks and the bankers as many apprehended it would. The stock of the railroad company has long been a mere plaything in the market, and persons who have dealt in it had become accustomed to its sudden rise or fall, but not even the officers of the company had any idea that there would be such a cause for declension as that which startled our people on Friday. It is unnecessary for us to attempt to give the real reasons for the disaster when the officials themselves are unable to present any, but it is gratifying to know that no charge of wrong doing is made by any one, and that there is a general belief that sooner or later the great corporations will be relieved in a great measure of its present difficulties.

The people of Pennsylvania are rallying to the relief of their stricken fellow citizens of Milton. From every direction help is going forward, and the good work will be kept up as long as there is necessity. Never has a community in this State been so severely scourged, and never was assistance more sorely needed. The insurance companies are prompt in adjusting losses, which will help many getting on their feet again; but many hundreds lost their all, and for the time being are compelled to depend on the generous aid of their more fortunate fellow men for the absolute necessities of life. The people of the entire State will, we are confident, do their entire share in aid of the sufferers.

DR. TROWBRIDGE, American consul at Mexico, reports the existence of a species of cactus in that country, called Pita, some of the fibres of which are sixteen feet long. It is strong and silky, and capable of being divided into threads, from which the finest fabrics might be woven. A citizen of Vera Cruz some time time ago sent some of the fibre to England and had it woven into handkerchiefs, which were very beautiful and strong, appearing more like silver tissue than linen. There are millions of acres of the plant which might be utilized.

THE Irish question is well summed up by James Redpath in a recent letter. "The Irish landlordism is a feudal system shorn of the duties of feudalism, which exacts all the rights of ownership in the soil, but recognizes no duties to the men who cultivate it. It is a system without one redeeming feature. After having blighted every country of Europe, it still exists to curse the soil and the souls of the Irish people. It must be abolished if famine is to be prevented."

FLORIDA is not too young to have an utterly obliterated city. St. Joseph was once a thriving seaport, the terminus of a railroad, a shipping point for hundreds of thousands of cotton bales of cotton bales annually, and the supply depot for the western section of the State. It lost its commerce, dwindled rapidly in population, was swept by yellow fever, and finally a tornado levelled the last of the houses. The place is now a wilderness.

THIS talk about Gen. Grant withdrawing, unless he is certain he cannot be nominated, is all nonsense. Does anyone imagine that he has been working for the Presidency ever since he left America for his tour abroad, only to withdraw when his nomination seems assured? That's not a part of the programme, and it would be well for the Blaine men to turn a deaf ear on all such talk.

PATRIOTIC communications have passed between Governor Long, of Massachusetts, and Mayor Courtenay, of Charleston, S. C., on account of the contribution of $250 for the memorial column in honor of the victory at Cowpens, January 17, 1781, authorizee by the Massachusetts Legislature.

WHEN the Czarina of Russia alighted from the railway car which took her to St. Petersburg, on her return from her last journey to Italy she exclaimed: "Alas! I have done with traveling. Farewell railroads; farewell coaches and locomotives. My next conveyance will be the hearse."

THE Secretary of War proposes legislation at this session of Congress creating in his office a "land title division," to collect, record and file the transfer deeds to the department of land occupied for military purposes, the estimated value of which is now about $200,000,000.

SUMMARY OF THE NEWS.

SPRINGFIELD, May 21—12 m.—The Republican Convention met this morning at 9 o'clock, all the delegations being fully represented.

Mr. Ford, from the committee appointed to select delegates, reported a list of delegates for the national convention. On finishing the reading of the report, Mr. Ford moved the previous question on its adoption.

Amid much confusion and loud protests from anti-Grant men, the roll was called on the previous question. The Blaine men refused to vote. The main question was carried, and the report was adopted.

C. D. Trimble, of Lasalle, offered thd following:

Resolved, That the committee heretofore appointed to report delegates and alternates to the Republican National Convention are hereby instructed to report to this convention two delegates at large, one elector for each Congressional district, six members at large of the State central committee and one member of the State central committee from each Congressional district. On the call of the roll this was also adopted—yeas, 274½; nays, 252½.

General Logan offered the the following and moved the previous question, and it was adopted:

Resolved, That General Grant is the choice of the Republican party of Illinois for the Presidency, and delegates from this State are instructed to use all honorable means to secure his nomination by the Chicago convention, and to vote as a unit on all questions.

PHILADELPHIA, May 21.—President Gowen, of the Philadelphia and Reading railroad company, stated officially at 1 p. m. that the Philadelphia and Reading coal and iron company has suspended payments, being unable to meet obligations. The stock of the Reading has fallen to 17½.

The suspension of the Philadelphia and Reading coal and iron company created great excitement on Third St. President Gowen declines to make any statement at present. It is understood that the company was obliged to pay New York parties for borrowed money the amount of $600,000, and this swamped the concern.

The stock of the Reading railroad has recovered a point or two, and is now selling at 18. The closing price yesterday afternoon was 23.

PHILADELPHIA, May 24. — Word has just been received from Pittsburg that Franklin B. Gowen, Edwin M. Lewis and S. A. Caldwell, president of the Fidelity trust company, have been appointed receivers of the Reading railroad.

MALLOY, Ireland, May 24.—On the arrival of a train containing emigrants from Kerry, on their way to America, the compartments which they were occupying were stormed by five hundred South Cork militia, who beat the emigrants unmercifully and ousted them from the carriages. Some of the emigrants were severely injured. The militia had just been disbanded after their annual training.

HOLLIDAYSBURG, May 24. — The Republican County Convention met here to-day. At 11 o'clock a. m. an organization was effected, when an adjournment was had until 2 o'clock p. m., at which time the convention again convened. Theodore Burchfield and B. E. Hewit were nominated for the Legislature. Hicks, of Tyrone, was nominated for District Attorney: Messrs. Stewart and Gamble for Associate Judges, and Mr. Plummer as Register and Recorder. Anthony S. Marrow was designated as the choice of Blair county for Congress, and D. P. Ray for the State Senate.

CHICAGO, May 24.—A Chicago special from Galena says: "The Gazette, whose editor is a personal friend of General Grant, published a statement to-day denying the current item that George W. Childs, of the Philadelphia Ledger, has information that General Grant will order his name to be withdrawn from the Chicago convention. He says that neither Childs nor anyone else has authority to make such assertion. General Grant's name has never gone before the public as a candidate by any word or act of his own, and he most certainly will not order his name withdrawn. A very large class of American people have chosen to make him a candidate, and if the Republican convention sees fit to tender him the nomination he will not decline. He knows that to be a fact."

SANTA CRUZ, Cal., May 24.—A train on the South Pacific Coast railroad ran off the track between here and Big Tree. The people in the forward open cars were thrown out in a heap and the cars following ran over such as lay struggling on the track. Thirteen were killed and forty wounded, of whom some will die. Every hotel has been turned into a hospital to receive the wounded, and everything is being done to alleviate their sufferings. No services were held at the churches yesterday.

ST. LOUIS, May 24.—The Democratic primaries for the election of delegates to the State convention to be held at Moberly on the 26th were held in this city on Saturday afternoon, and the returns so far in from about one-half of the wards indicate the city will send a pretty strong anti-Tilden delegation. A good many county conventions were held to-day the returns from four of which show the majority of them to be for Tilden. Opinion is divided as to how the State convention will stand, some claiming it for and others against Tilden. So few county delegations are instructed that it is impossible to state the result definitely, and the complexion of the convention will not be known till after that body meets.

LATER—Well informed Democrats here claim that the State convention will contain a large majority of delegates favorable to Tilden.

ST. PETERSBURG, Pa., May 24.—On Saturday about 9 o'clock fire broke out in the United States hotel, Edenburg, and before it could be stopped the town, for the third time, was almost entirely destroyed. About one hundred buildings were burned. The loss will certainly reach $150,000. The post office, Clarion county bank, Union pipe line offices, Brown's block and United States hotel are the principal buildings burned. Little or no insurance was held in the town, insurance companies having declined to take risks since the town was swept on the previous occasion. Upwards of one hundred families are homeless, and many who slept in comfortable beds the night previous slept on the ground on Saturday night.

YORK, Pa., May 21.—The extensive car shops of Michael Schall were damaged by fire at an early hour this morning to the extent of $25,000, and fifteen hundred hands are thus thrown out of employment. During the burning of the car shops another fire occurred in Michael Wiest's bakery in another part of the town.

632 Years Building a Cathedral.

The largest cathedral in the world that of Cologne, is fast approaching completion. Its first stone was laid on August 15, 1248. The six hundred and thirty-first year of its building was completed on the 15th of August last, and it is hoped that the next anniversary will really see the finishing of the great minster. The two towers have not reached their last stage, and have only to be fitted with their massive caps of solid stonework. For this purpose two great scaffoldings have been erected at a dizzy height. One of them, however, approaches completion. When the caps have been finished, then a still higher story will have to be added to the scaffolding, in order to fix on the top of the caps the gigantic foliated crosses which are to crown the towers. This operation will, it is expected, be performed this spring.

The proposition to make enlisted men in the regular army who have served faithfully fifteen consecutive years, the last five as non commissioned officers, eligible to the promotion to second lieutenant, is a proper one. Experience in the late war proved that some of our best officers had previously served in the ranks, and there is plenty of good material in our little standing army from which to make just as creditable selections.

"I never shall give you nothing again," said little she with a pout.

"Well, I sh'd hope you'd give better grammar than that. That's two negatives, sis, and means one affirmative."

"I know better. If I say no twice I don't mean yes once, so now." And the young grammarian was a little confused.

The reason figures won't lie is because they were made to stand for something.

The Circus.

BY VANDYKE BROWN.

O, there's many a jolly thing
That blossoms with the spring,
For then it is that Nature her miracles doth work us;
But of all the things that sprout
The best beyond a doubt
Is the canvas-tented, saw-dust scented, always jolly circus.

With a thrill of glad surprise
The youngster stands and eyes
Each gorgeous-colored poster that decorates the fences,
And which in glowing terms
His own belief confirms
That the coming show to all who go will dazzle quite their senses.

And when the day arrives
And the gilded chariot drives
Resplendent through the town, with bands of music playing,
Pray, where's the boy who'd not Give all the wealth he's got
To be the clown who wins renown by funny speeches saying?

And once within the tent
Though it takes his every cent,
Your ten-year-old is happier than any monarch ruling;
While he laughs with keenest zest
And declares each act the best,
From the entree gay with rich array to final trick-mule's fooling.

The intrepid bareback rider,
With the girl whose skirts don't hide her
The leapers and the tumblers and the horse to music prancing,
And the brothers who with ease
Mount the treacherous trapeze,
And the nimble-footed gent who keeps the barrel dancing.

The nerves that never falter,
The double somersaulter
Who clears a stud of horses with safety and precision—
All these their glory fling
Around the sawdust ring,
And so enamor by their glamour every boyish vision.

To you and me perhaps
(Old, gray and wrinkled chaps)
This glamour, with some other things, has long ago departed;
But your trustful ten-year-old
Finds all the glitter gold—
And so did you before you grew too wise to be light-hearted.

So the praises still I sing
Of the jolly saw-dust ring,
Which comes to us when Nature her miracles doth work us;
For the happiest of things
Which the gentle spring-time brings
Is the canvas-tented, sawdust-scented, much-frequented circus. N. Y. Clipper.

PERILS OF THE WILDERNESS.

"I suppose you saw some pretty hard times when you first settled in the Western country?" I once said to an old pioneer.

"Indeed I did, sir," he replied, with the look of one who is taking a retrospective view. "I am an old man now and my hair, you see, is white; but it was as black as coal on the night I was snowed up among wolves. Ah me, that was a terrible night, sir, and I never think of it but I involuntarily shudder at the recollection, and thank God that I was so wonderfully preserved through that night!"

"Can I not prevail on you to tell me the story?"

"Oh, yes, I will tell it to you, as I have told it to many others before you—so many, in fact, that I have it quite by heart—though if I had never mentioned the matter from that day to this, I am certain I should have no trouble now in recalling the minute details, so strongly are the facts impressed upon my memory.

"It was just after the war of 1812, that I got married and took my wife to a purchase I had made from the government within the limits of what is now the State of Illinois. The Indians, previous to this time, had been somewhat troublesome to the sett'ers in that region; but, after peace was declared, they buried the hatchet, and we no longer had any occasion to fear them in the vicinity where I located myself.

"When I built my cabin and moved into it, with the few housekeeping articles I had brought from the east, everything around me looked gloomy enough, and my poor wife sat down and had a good crying spell from sheer homesickness. I laughed at her, and talking largely of what I was going to do, and all that sort of thing; but, to tell you the honest truth, I felt a good deal more like crying than laughing myself. Our nearest neighbor was ten miles distant; the only mill where we could get grinding was fifteen; all the stock I had in the world were the two horses which had drawn us and our effects out there, and one of these was blind and the other lame; while, to crown all, I had no money and besides seed grain, barely provisions enough to last us till an early harvest."

"Now, I suppose you would like to ask, what made me fool enough to venture into a new country and set up housekeeping under such circumstances; and I will answer you that I was young, strong, poor and ambitious, and I thought, and so did my wife, that this would be the only we could ever gain an independence.

"Well, things were not so bad as they might have been; and I consoled myself with the reflection that we were a great deal better off than a good many others who had settled in the wilderness before us. My farm was about half woodland and half prairie—a rich, alluvial soil—and so, without being obliged to clear the ground first, I could proceed to plow, plant and sow at once, which I did, it being the right season of the year for the work.

"We got through the summer very well, all things considered, and our crops were such as to make both of us look forward with a degree of cheerfulness and hope. My wife, though not exactly contented and happy, had got over her first and severe attack of homesickness, and using all the philosophy and reason she was master of, had become as resigned to her lot as I could expect. When I was with her, she generally seemed quite cheerful; but I had to be away more or less, and during my absence she became timid and low spirited, always fearing that something would happen to me. For this reason I made it a point, no matter where I went, to either take her with me, or return home the same night, even though I might not get in till late."

"One pleasant morning, late in the fall, I mounted my blind horse and set off for the mill—to get a grist I had left there, as was the custom, a week before—telling my wife I had not the least doubt I should be back before dark.

"'And if you are not, Peter,' she said, 'you know I shall be terribly frightened, and shall sit trembling by my lone fire till I hear your voice.'

"'Poor Nancy!' she little knew how many long hours she would sit trembling alone before she would see me again: and little did I dream what perils and sufferings would be mine before I should again cross the threshold of my humble dwelling.

"I took my rifle and hunting knife with me, hoping, as had sometimes occurred, I might get a shot at a deer; and if not, there were more or less bears and wolves about, and now and then some straggling Indians, and it was always best to go prepared for whatever one might chance to encountre.

"I reached the mill long before noon, and had my grist been ready, I could easily have got home, as I promised, before dark; but it was not yet ground, and when I told the miller how disappointed I was, and that we had not meal enough in the house for more than two days, he said that if I would wait he would try and have it ready for me by four o'clock. I thought of my timid wife and lonely ride in the dark, and half resolved to go home at once and return the next day; but then, besides that it seemed foolish to make an entire journey again to save a few hours, there was by this time every appearance of a quick gathering storm, and it might be impossible to get back for the grist before we should be actually suffering for the want of bread; so all things being duly considered, I concluded to wait.

"Now, as bad luck would have it, something went wrong with the mill and instead of getting my grist by four o'clock, as promised, I was detained till near eight, by which time such a furious snowstorm was raging that the miller advised me, as a matter of safety, to remain till morning, saying I might get into an impassable drift and lose my life.

"'No,' said I, thinking of my poor anxious wife, trembling for fear of her loneliness, 'I shall make the attempt at all hazzards.'

"I had a strip of woodland to go through for the first five miles, and I thought that bad enough I assure you; but it was nothing in comparison to the open plain which stretched away before me for ten miles to my very door. Sadly the wind howled and moaned among the trees, yet they served to break its force and in a measure to protect me as I guided my blind, stumbling horse along the path which the light of the snow enabled me to see; but when I reached the plain the storm burst upon me with terrible fury, filled my eyes, cut my face, chilled my blood, almost blew me down, and piled the snow in ridges higher than my head.

"I stopped and prayed, for I felt without God's assistance I should never get through to see my dear wife again, and then I set forward with child like reliance and committed myself to the guidance of the Supreme Power.

"For a short distance I continued to ride; but I soon found this would not do; for beside the fact that I could scarcely keep my position and felt my limbs and body numb with the piercing cold, my poor horse was beginning to stagger from the effects of the wind and his load together; so I got down and led him forward, both of us stumbling more or less on the clear ground, and plunging and wallowing through the high drifts, which were every minute growing higher and more difficult to surmount.

"In this manner I had gone over as nigh as I could judge about three miles of prairie, when there came to my ears, born along on the rushing blast, the distant howling of a pack of wolves. Of all nights such a night as this was the very one for these ravenous beasts to get the courage to attack a man, and my heart sunk and my legs trembled. Had there been nobody except myself to think about I could have put a pretty bold face upon the matter, but the thought of my poor Nancy being left alone to mourn for me and perhaps starve to death and die by slow agonies seemed to take away all my hope, strength and courage; and when a minute after I stumbled and fell into a drift I lay there for some time, hearing the storm roar and the wolves howl still louder and thinking I might as well die one ways as another.

"But all at once as I lay there trembling like a frightened hare, it occurred to me that I was acting the coward and the fool both. I was not dead yet, and why should I die before my time came without striking a blow in self-defense? With this I jumped up, shook off the snow from myself and rifle, beat my hands and arms against my breast to get some warmth into them, and then reprimed my piece and fixed my knife where I could grasp and use it in an instant.

"By the time all this was done the noise of the wolves had come a good deal nearer, and my horse, as if he knew what a bloody fate was waiting him, snorted and trembled, but not being able to see he did not attempt to run away. At first I thought of leaving him to appease the hunger of the beasts while I made my escape on foot; but it was by no means certain that I could escape in this way, and besides it seemed absolutely necessary that I should take the meal home with me, and so, after consideration, resolved to mount him and make the best defense I could. I got on him upon my knees, threw the bridle over one arm, covered my rifle as best I could and there, with the storm howling past, and the snow fairly drifting over me in sheets, I waited in terrible suspense the onset of my foes."

"I did not have to wait long before I saw their eyes flashing like coals of fire all around me, and heard, above the roar of the tempest their barkings, snarlings and growlings, as they danced about, leaping and tumbling over each other, one minute venturing up close and then falling back in alarm as I shouted to frighten them, but all the time getting bolder and bolder, till I saw the struggle must come soon. My poor struggling horse could not protect himself in the least, for besides, as I said that he could not see, he was now imbedded in a drift, one-half of which had snowed up around him after he had stopped; and though, if the wolves had not been present I might perhaps have worked him out of this, yet I doubt if he could have got out alone, or that I could have ever got him home alive in any case.

"Well, the work of destruction soon begun, by some of the boldest of the beasts plunging into the drift, and seizing upon the horse before and behind at the same time. He shrieked and reared at the same time. He shrieked and reared and plunged and kicked, and it was a marvel that I was not thrown and destroyed before him. I clung to him for a short time, unable either to shoot or to use my rifle for a club, and believing my end was at hand, and then somehow by a sudden impulse I sprang to my feet and jumped from his back into the deepest part of the snow. I went down like plunging into water, and the next instant the sweeping blast had covered me with a white mantle that I only hoped would be my winding sheet, if it would save me from the fang of the monsters that were now tearing my horse to pieces."

"For what seemed an age to me the ravenous beasts remained at their bloody work, snarling, growling and fighting. Every minute of this time I was expecting them to bounce upon me, and I kept my knife in hand prepaid to sell my life dearly. I had my rifle with me too, but this was of no use except to thrust through the white wall of my prison to open an air hole through which I could breathe. Except the fear of the wolves attacking me, I did not feel so very uncomfortable in my strange quarters, and when at last I became sensible by the sounds that the animals were dispersing, my poor heart took a great bound with hope, and I thanked with my whole heart for his kind providence in preserving me.

"It was a long, a terribly long and trying night after that, as I remained there buried in the snow, constantly changing my position, rubbing my legs, arms, hands and body, forcing open a breathing hole, rousing myself from a drowsiness whose sleep would have been death, listening to the shrieking and howling storm above me, and thinking of my poor, distracted wife at home—it was a terribly long night indeed—but I lived through it and fervently thanked God to see the storm abate with the dawn of day.

"Though only seven miles to my cabin it took me six hours of hard labor to reach it; and then I fell into the arms of my almost frantic wife, completely exhausted, and with some of my limbs so frosted that I was not able to leave the house again for months."

High-Toned English Executions.

In the course of 140 years only some half a dozen men of social position have been convicted of murder and hanged in England. Chief among these were Lord Ferres who is notorious; Mr. Parsons, eldest son of a baronet, whose baronetcy is extinct; Captain Donellan and Captain Moir. The case of the last, though much the latest, is little known. He was a Scotchman, brother-in-law to Sir James Baird, baronet, a near relative of Sir David Baird, who preceded Wellington in the command of the Peninsular army, and first cousin to Sir William Rae, at the date of the fatal occurrence lord advocate of Scotland. He had served seventeen years in the army, and while at Gibralter nearly died from the yellow fever. This affected his brain, and while in Canada he inflicted wounds on himself with a hatchet; in fact, from the date of his illness he was a changed man, and from having been cheerful and amiable, became morose and violent. In 1828 he left the army and took a farm in Essex, and in March, 1830, in discovering a fisherman, whom he had found repeatedly poaching, at it again, notwithstanding the repeated warnings, he fired at him. The shot broke the man's arm, and he afterwards died of lockjaw. A petition with 1,000 signatures was forwarded in his behalf to George IV., but in vain.

Local Small Talk.

—Farmers tell us that the cold snap of two weeks ago was almost fatal to young pear trees.

—Wagner's case being disposed of, the Sportsmen's Club is now ready for the next man.

—Knights of the paint pot and brush are at work on residences on Lamb and Bishop streets.

—The merchant tailors in town are having a boom, and are sending all over the country for tailors.

—Rumor says that W. A. Sweeny, the gentlemanly proprietor of the billiard saloon, is fast becoming an expert troutist.

—The Sheridan band, of Tyrone, is wrestling with the question whether not to accept the challenge of the Altoona city band.

—Our Bellefonte sporting men should organize a boat club. A town without a boating club isn't thought much of now-a-days.

—Base ballists in this place are not taking any stock in the national game this year, possibly on account of the slim record they made last year.

—Our Huntingdon neighbors are agitating the scheme of organizing stock companies with a view to establishing manufactories at that place.

—Strips of board have been nailed over the dangerous holes in Valentines' railroad trestle over the creek. There is room for more repairing of the same sort.

—Mr. William Wolf, Jr., comes to the front with a bouncing twelve-pounder—a boy. Billy is jubilant over the arrival, and says the little stranger is a black Republican.

—The McVeytown Journal says an ordinary woman's waist is thirty inches around. Brother Conrad will no doubt be rewarded in time for making this valuable discovery.

—The flying dust and dirt from the streets is becoming almost unendarable. If it gets much worse street pedestrians will have to adopt the custom of wearing wire masks.

—Isaac Haupt had a rat matinee all to himself the other day. He caught twenty five rats in a trap in one night, and his dogs dispatched them in just two minutes. Big feat, Isaac thinks.

—David Kennedy says he isn't going to bother himself about planting potatoes this year. He don't relish the sport of trotting around three times a day with a pan gathering bugs.

—The McVeytowners were scared about out of their wits by the meteor that was visible in the northern sky on Saturday night, the 8th inst. They thought it was the big comet about to dash in amongst them.

—Those who have occasion to use matches should be particular and not throw them where there is paper or other inflammable material. When everything is so extremely dry a spark is liable to start a conflagration.

—The boardwalk leading down Race street to the foundry has been repaired, but whoever performed the work neglected to hammer down the spikes that protrude half an inch in some places and trip up the unwary.

—Farmers up the Bald Eagle valley, and in other parts of the county, have been compelled to devote the most of their time during the last three weeks to fighting mountain fires, and their crops have suffered greatly in consequence.

—The ladies up in the oil regions are on their muscle. New Castle young ladies have issued a challenge to the ladies of Sharon to play a match game of base ball. They'd better be at home baking bread or scrubbing up the kitchen.

—Mr. John Wagner, Fish Warden of Centre county, having been found guilty of violating the fish laws, has been removed from office and his commission revoked. Mr. Henry Montgomery has been appointed to fill the position, his commision dating from May 17th, 1880.

—The hotel porters are no longer allowed to crowd around the cars at the trains and shout for their respective hotels. They are required to stand in a line at the foot of the platform and keep quiet till the passengers alight. This matter has long needed regulating.

—Samuel Rine, engineer, is bound to keep things looking well and in good order at the water works. A part of the machinery was treated to a fresh coat of paint last week, and the engine and pumps thoroughly cleaned up, and to accommodate those who desire to partake of the sparkling waters a long-handled iron dipper has been chained to the railing near the entrace.

—The City Band of Altoona, will shortly receive new uniforms. The uniforms will consist of tight-fitting National Guard coat, white pants and vest, and a new style of naval cap.

—Messrs. George J. Eldred, H. W. Brown and W. A. Hanna are the chosen delegates from Clinton county to attend the annual meeting for the election of trustees of State College, to be held June 20th.

—The Bellefonte band has secured the services of a first-class leader and casts longing eyes toward that Altoona prize.—[McVeytown Journal. Yes, and one of these days she is going to reach out and pluck it.

—The railroad companies have concluded to issue no free passes to the Chicago convention, which hits several so-called politicians hereabouts, who were making arrangements to deadhead it, in a vital place.

—The citizens of Ferguson township have determined that the graves of her soldiers shall not be passed by unnoticed, and are making preparations for the proper observance of Decoration day by visiting all the cemeteries in the township. Her noble example should be followed by other townships.

—The State College Dramatic Club, the same organization that presented "Oliver Twist" so satisfactorily in this place a year or so ago, will play "Eugene Aram," as dramatized from Lord Lytton's well known story of that name, on Friday evening, May 28th. The club is composed of some able talent, and we doubt not the play will be strongly presented.

—Mr. Peter Markle, one of Hublersburg's oldest citizens, died on Wednesday last in his eightieth year. He was born in Maryland, and after completing his trade, that of wagonmaker, he moved to Boalsburg, this county, and subsequently to Hublersburg, where he has resided for about 40 years. He will be buried to-day in the new cemetery at that place.

—This seems to be an unusually good season for circulating sensational reports. Wednesday a man rushed into our office and wanted to know if we had heard of the terrible conflagration at Snow Shoe, and a day or two ago a man hailed us on the street and inquired what the latest was from the big fire in Altoona. There are plenty of genuine fires raging in the country, and it is not at all necessary to spread false reports for the sake of having something to talk about.

—Most everybody is trying their hand on weather predictions just now, and we are going into it, too. We predict, between now and the first of next August, more or less rain, assorted weathee with southeasterly barometers, murky and obscure temperature, revolving atmosphere with north winds from the south, several redhot nights, and a couple of wet Sundays, in case it should rain. We think our readers, by giving it their attention, will find this report generally incorrect.

—The oration on Decoration day, by Hon. Jos. W. Parker, of Lewistown, will be delivered in front of the Court House at the close of the exercises at the cemetery, which will be about 5 o'clock p. m., if no delays occur. The committees have thought it advisable to make this change in order to accommodate many of our citizens who desire to hear the address but are unable to walk to the cemetery. Should the weather be unfavorable, the discourse will be delivered inside the Court House.

—The McVeytown Journal says of Hon. J. W. Parker, of Lewistown, who is to deliver the oration at this place on Decoration day: "Hon. Jos. W. Parker, of Lewistown, has been engaged to deliver the address on Decoration day at Bellefonte. The G. A. R. Post has secured the services of one of Pennsylvania's most eloquent and forcible speakers in Mr. Parker, and we know his loyalty and patriotism will inspire him with such sentiments as cannot fail to meet the approval of those who love our country and honor the heroes who died in defense of it."

—It is known that a certain person caught about a dozen black bass a few days ago at the mill dam by letting the water off so to leave the fish an easy prey. The season for catching these fish has not arrived, and the party having them in possession runs great risk of being prosecuted. These fish were placed in these waters at considerable expense, and unlawful fishing for them will not be tolerated. It is also stated that some parties fished in the dam with nets a few nights ago, catching 120 fish. This was done in defiance of what was known to be the law. The Wagner case has been well advertised, and no one can now plead ignorance of the law.

Company B Disbanded for Bad Conduct.

On the 15th inst. Col. Burchfield received an order from military headquarters disbanding Co. B, of this place. It is stated that the company has not borne a very good record for some time past, and this final action on account of a disgraceful scene enacted at an election for second lieutenant held April 11th. Several members, it is claimed, created a disturbance over the election, which resulted in breaking up the meeting. Following is the order disbanding the company: "Special order No. 11 directs the commander to turn over to this department all State property now in the possession of his command, which includes uniforms, arms and equipments, and furnish the enlisted men with proper discharges when they have turned in the property that has been issued to them." As soon as this order has been carried into execution, Lieutenant Col. D. H. Hastings, of this place, who is vested with the rightful authority, will organize another company out of new material.

Brother Pinkney Discourseth.

Brother Pinkney, who sometimes mounts the rostrum and proclaims the Good Word, engaged in a heated religious discussion with Tommy Norman Tuesday afternoon on the depot steps, surrounded by a crowd of interested listeners. Tommy was rather slow in getting in his work, and while he was thinking up his dates and figures, our preacher friend would elevate his index finger and swoop down on him with a pondrous string of "facts in de matter," throwing him clear off his eggs, so to speak. Brother Pinkney said his book didn't read like Tommy's, and there was no use in "argying." Once in a while, though, Tommy would get in a right hander, following it up with an "A-h-a," which caused the ex-preacher to roll his eyes around uneasily. The debate was decidedly interesting, but as neither would acknowledge the corn, it was declared a draw—Tommy drew a sigh, and his opponent drew down his vest.

Guard Against Fire.

The great destruction of property by fire, during the past week or ten days, should put everybody on their guard, and every precautionary measure to prevent fire in Bellefonte should be adopted at once, and be continued during the extreme drought. The fire department of our borough should urge it upon our citizens to use water about their buildings frequently and profusely, remembering that prevention is better than cure under all circumstances. Chairman McClure, of the water department, is keeping an abundance of water in the reservoir, and Chairman Mullen, of the fire department, should spare no efforts to enforce precautionary measures. We noticed that Mr. Howard Lingle, of Wm. P. Duncan & Co.'s, had the Logan men sprinkle the foundry and surroundings yesterday afternoon, which will meet the hearty approval of all good citizens. Let the good work go on while the danger lasts.

Travels of a Postal Card.

On the 17th of last January Mr. Leonard S. Coxe, of Pottsville, started a postal card around the world. It was directed first to London, England; thence to Marseilles, France; thence to Cairo, Egypt; thence to Bombay, India; thence to Hong Kong, China; thence to Yokohama, Japan; thence to San Francisco, California, and thence home to Pottstown. The card reached its destination in the Pottstown postoffice on Wednesday, May 12th, having been one hundred and twenty-five days on the way. It bears the stamps of no less than fifteen postoffices, having been stamped at London, January 29th, Marseilles February 3d, Cairo February 15th, Suez February 25th, Bombay March 3d, Singapore March 20th, San Francisco May 4th—two or three of the dates and stamps not being readable. The far-traveled card will be sent to Mr. Coxe, at Altoona, who will doubtless keep it as a rare curiosity.

—Last week something curious happened in Bellefonte. The "prettiest girl in five counties" passed the Watchman office! Remember, she "passed."—[Altoona Call. Is it possible they allowed her to "go it alone."—Harrisburg Telegraph. They probably couldn't "assist her" and "played off." She might have held a "club," too. Anybody else want to "pick it up?"

—The Democrat says a daughter of Mr. W. S. Tate, of Pleasant Gap, was severely bitten by a savage coach dog one day last week. The young lady was entering her home when the dog sprang upon her, throwing her down and biting her savagely upon the arm and body. The dog was promptly shot.

DR. HALL'S ELECTRIC BELTS.

For the cure of all nervous diseases without the least derangement of the patient's habits or daily occupation. This appliance exerts powerful and beneficial influence throughout the whole frame: is applicable to either sex, and affords instantaneous relief in the following diseases:

Rheumatism,
Neuralgia,
Dyspepsia,
Lumbago,
General Debility,
Headaches,
Dizziness,
Impotency,
Spermatorrhœa,
Sexual Exhaustion,
Self Abuse,
Premature Decay, &c.

These belts are the result of the profound research and experiment in Electro-Therapeutics, and by their peculiar construction, a continuous "galvanic current" is generated, which permeates the whole frame, and especially envelops the suffering parts with its gentle influence. This current assimilates closer to the nervous fluid than anything known to medical science—hence its potency as a curative agent.

Most especially is the application of electricity in this form beneficial to those disorders arising from youthful indiscretion, sexual excess, or dissipations of any kind, whereby the procreative powers are lessened and Impotency threatened. No false delicacy or sense of shame should prevent the sufferer, subject to restless nights, nightmare, dreams, palpitation of the heart, neuralgia, dimness of sight and other symptoms of nervous and physical debility, applying to the undersigned for relief.

These belts are light, perfectly flexible, and easily adjusted, all of which, together with their cheapness, renders them superior to any other form, for the application of electricity, medicinally.

☞ 50,147 of these belts were sold in Europe in the year 1876.

"Electricity is Life,"

And no remedy can be compared to it for the treatment of IMPOTENCE and loss of nervous vitality.

This belt is recommended by the most eminent physiologists of this country and Europe.

"Ingenious, wonderful—a deathblow to the old system of drugging."—London (Eng.) Lancet.

Ayer's Hair Vigor,

FOR RESTORING GRAY HAIR TO ITS NATURAL VITALITY AND COLOR.

IT is a most agreeable dressing, which is at once harmless and effectual, for preserving the hair. It restores, with the gloss and freshness of youth, faded or gray, light, and red hair, to a rich brown, or deep black, as may be desired. By its use thin hair is thickened, and baldness often though not always cured. It checks falling of the hair immediately, and causes a new growth in all cases where the glands are not decayed; while to brashy, weak, or otherwise diseased hair, it imparts vitality and strength, and renders it pliable.

The VIGOR cleanses the scalp, cures and prevents the formation of dandruff; and, by its cooling, stimulating, and soothing properties, it heals most if not all of the humors and diseases peculiar to the scalp, keeping it cool, clean, and soft, under which conditions diseases of the scalp and hair are impossible.

As a Dressing for Ladies' Hair, The VIGOR is incomparable. It is colorless, contains neither oil nor dye, and will not soil white cambric. It imparts an agreeable and lasting perfume, and as an article for the toilet it is economical and unsurpassed in its excellence.

ADDITIONAL LOCALS.

—Three lady enumerators have been appointed in Blair county by Simpson Africa.

—The Centre County Pomona Grange meets at Centre Hall on Tuesday next.

—The vigorous rains of Thursday did a great deal towards squelching the mountain fires.

—Lewistown subscribed $185 for Milton, and Tyrone $95. Huntingdon is waiting to see if there really was a fire.

—The entertainment given by the Choral and Orchestral Society, on Tuesday night last, netted the society a little over fifty dollars.

—Mr. H. W. Foust, late proprietor of the planing mill at the dam in this place, has taken up his residence in Curwinsville for the present.

—Our enterprising shoe man, John Powers, whose cow was recently killed by the cars, has received full value for the animal—$30—from the railroad company.

—Hay rakes of the latest patents, self-dump rakes. Also the celebrated Ithaca horse hay rake, with broad cast grain and plaster sower attached. For sale by ALEXANDER & Co.

—The forest fires have stirred up the menagerie in the woods, and bears, wildcats and other ferocious beasts are prowling about in the fields and back roads. Country tourists should be on their guard, lest they be devoured.

—People who live in the vicinity of the depot say they can easily dispense with the screeching and tooting of the engines, the means employed in signaling trains. One man says it is driving him crazy and making him baldheaded.

—The latest style of lifting the hat to ladies on the street is called the "Darwin Jerk" because it very much resembles the salute given to passers-by by hand-organ monkeys. We don't imagine the "jerk" will live through the summer.

—Farmers throughout the county say the grasshopper crop will be large this season. The grass crop has already suffered from the late dry spell, and if the hoppers begin their destructive operations, good hay will be a scarce article in the fall.

It is Thought—

That the wooden paving before the Bush House has about outlived its usefulness.

That a public bath house in this place would be greatly appreciated by our citizens, and would prove a profitable investment.

That Bellefonte ought to have a liberty pole on the Diamond from which to float the Stars and Stripes on National holidays.

That John Klinehurst is seriously contemplating matrimony with one of Bellefonte's fair daughter.

That some of the cattle that roam about the streets at all hours of the day and night, tearing up shade trees and breaking down boardwalks, will be missing one of these days.

That Bellefonte can dispense with about nine hundred of her dog population and still be happy.

That shade trees in town would flourish as well and the bark be better preserved if people would not hitch their horses to them.

That Bogardus will not come to Bellefonte to shoot glass balls with Wilkinson. He's not going to place his reputation in jeopardy, "not if he knows it."

That if one or two of Bellefonte's beer guzzlers should swear off several breweries would go into bankruptcy immediately.

That if Joe Furey refuses to run on the ticket with Tilden the party may as well disband.

That the next man who violates the fish laws will wish he hadn't. No fooling next time.

That Al. Garman's admiration for that "boss" counter will grow cold eventually.

That if the board walk leading out to the water works isn't steadied up some one will be tossed into the creek one of these dark nights.

That Bill McClure ought to claim the reward offered for finding Charlie Ross!

That Mat Dooley is very gallant, especially to some of Milesburg's sparkling brunettes.

That the Decoration day exercises will be unusually interesting and complete this year.

That the Mountain City Band will win good opinions during its visit to Williamsport on the 27th, to take part in the Knights Templar demonstration.

That the Bellefonte Fencibles, now being organized to take the place of Co. B, disbanded, will rank as one of the finest military organizations in the State.

Sir Knights to Breakfast at the Brockerhoff.

Eminent Commander Munson received yesterday from W. R. Teller, proprietor of the Brockerhoff House, the following letter:

BROCKERHOFF HOUSE, May 24.

Eminent Sir: I respectfully request the pleasure of yourself and your Commandery to breakfast at this house on Thursday morning at six o'clock.

Courteously and fraternally yours,
W. R. TELLER.

This invitation has been accepted by the commandery, and the members and other Knights present, with their ladies, will assemble at the Brockerhoff House at 6 o'clock a. m., to partake of the repast so generously tendered.

In connection with this matter we would state that the special train to Williamsport will leave here at seven o'clock sharp, and all the Sir Knights are requested to be in line at the hour of marching from the Asylum, to prevent any delay from occurring.

The price of excursion tickets has been fixed at $2.06. Those who desire to accompany the commandery can obtain tickets by applying to Eminent Commander L. T. Munson.

—Here is a bear story from the Raftsmen's Journal: "On Thursday, the 13th inst., as John, who lives on the farm of Col. E. A. Irvin, a short distance south of Curwensville, was going down the lane, on his way to work, he heard something behind him and thinking it was his dog ordered him to 'go back.' Still hearing it panting, he looked around and to his surprise saw a yearling black bear trotting along instead of his dog, and impulsively he stepped to one side. The bear kept on down the lane, and Mr. M. gave it chase, pelting it with stones, but bruin continued on his way and succeeded in reaching the woods and making good his escape."

—Mowers and Reapers. We sell the Osborne make, which are noted for light running, good work and durability. They last longer than any other machine made. These facts have never been contradicted.

ALEXANDER & Co.

—Don't trade around with your last year's rags on when you can get a stylish new suit for little or nothing at Lewin's Philadelphia branch.

Stormstown Gossip.

STORMSTOWN, May 17th, 1880.

Editor Republican:

The decision of Congress in the Curtin-Yocum contest, rendered in favor of Mr. Yocum, was hailed with delight and much rejoicing throughout our valley, by Republicans, Greenbackers and quite a number of Democrats. The Curtin faction has been beaten at the polls and in a Democratic Congress, and next in order will be the Vice-Presidency. Gov. Curtin's sickness immediately after his defeat at the polls reminds me of an old woman, who quarreled with her husband and thrashed him soundly, and chucked him under the bed with the remark that she didn't want to hear a crooked word out of him during the night. The poor old fellow kept quite as long as possible, when he poked his head out from under the bed and yelled, "Rams horns if I should die for it." So I suppose Gov. Curtin will yell Vice-President if it kills him.

In the way of politics up here there is very little said, but about three-thirds of the Republicans in this township are for Blaine; the balance of the voters are for either Tilden or Hancock.

The ore fever is still raging through this section of the country. Mattern Bros. have struck an 8 or 10 ft. vein.

Wm. B. Way of this place found ore while others are still digging.

Mr. David Shivery is burning one hundred thousand brick, preparatory to erecting a fine residence next summer. David is one of the true tried Republicans of Ferguson township, and subscriber to the REPUBLICAN.

Of all the patentees I will back Mr. John B. Mattern of Matternville, against any or the whole of them, It will be remembered that about two years ago Mr. Mattern cast staves 18ft. long and hooped them firmly together with wagon-tire and lined with fire brick and had a complete lime kiln, which worked to his entire satisfaction. About three weeks ago Mr. Mattern conceived an idea of a lime kiln on the same principle, only smaller, which would answer more purposes than simply burning lime, and in a short time Johny had his staves cast, his cellar rid out and the lime kiln up with a top on with griddle holes all completete, while Mrs. Mattern had the dinner prepared for cooking, and in a short time the kiln was fired up. It wasn't long till the meat was burning, the tea kettle boiling over, the potatoes scorched and the house as hot as a furnace. The flooring began to smoke and the occupants of the house retired to a fresher air when Johnny gave the command to draw fire, which was promptly done; but Jonny says he will have it to work yet, and I believe he will.

Capt. John A. Hunter who was laid up all winter with the rheumatism is able to ride out occasionally.

In the chapter of accidents and deaths we have had quite a number of the latter. A little girl of George Gates' fell from an up stairs' window last week and broke her leg close to the thigh.

We had here last week what we have not had for eight years—a double funeral. On April 30th Mr. Geo. Mattern departed this life. The day previous he was apparently in good health. He was 80 years old and a consistent member of the Methodist church. On the same day Mrs. Sarah Mattern, wife of Samuel Mattern, also died. She, too, was a member of the Methodist church. Both funerals and religious ceremonies were held at the same time and place.

Are we to observe decoration day? The time is drawing near, and some steps should be taken by our citizens to properly observe the day set apart to decorate the graves of our fallen heroes, and it should be reverend by all. It is but little, indeed, for us to do to plant upon the graves of the brave ones who faced the dangers of battle, a flower and moisten it with a tear of affection. Let us give this day wholly up to our fallen heroes, and strew their graves with flowers that their deeds may be kept fresh and never grow dim in our memories. CORPORAL.

—You may travel from one end of the State to the other and look in every corner and you will not find a more complete or homelike place to stop at than the Garman House of this place. The proprietor has had many years of experience in hoteling and has ample opportunities of studying the wants and requirements of his patrons. He knows exactly how to suit everybody, from a millionaire to a stage driver, and all receive the same care and attention.

Eagleville Items.

Our business men are J. J. Kunes, wholesale and retail merchant, on the corner. He carries a heavy stock, has obliging clerks and is himself a splendid German gentleman.

Two doors below is the firm of Messrs. Singer & Quigley. Singer is a fine business man, and drives a pair of spanking blacks. Quigley, the jolly captain, is always ready to wait on a customer or crack a joke, just as you choose. They, too, have gent'emanly clerks.

J. A. Stover, the foundry man, does quite a business in plows, stoves, kettles, and "sich," as well as keeps a nice clean temperance hotel.

Wilson Clark, the brave blacksmith, who lately took to himself a handsome young wife, is doing a driving business.

Thomas Lingle, the tall Greenbacker, who shines up buggies, wagons, and the like for any kind of money, ranks among our best geniuses.

Last but not least in this list is Dood Williams, the happy little cigar man, who is doing a puffing business in making, selling and smoking good cigars.

Our lumbering interests are cared for by the steady business brain of John Nestlerode, the giant of Bald Eagle. He runs a large gang mill, and makes all kinds of lumber.

Mr. Fowler is at present taking the lead in lumber matters, working some sixty or seventy men. We are having a great many visitors, but we don't believe the public cares very much about that, so we will not name them.

Funds Wanted.

The Logan hose company, of this place, is particularly desirous of making a creditable display in the parade on Decoration Day, and to enable them to do so new shirts and trimmings were ordered some time ago. The new goods will arrive in a few days by express, but as there are not enough funds in the treasury to defray the expense by a few dollars, the company will be unable to lift them from the express office without further aid, as they will be forwarded C. O. D. For this reason, and in order to raise the necessary amount, a subscription paper will be circulated among our citizens, ond all contributions will be thankfully received. The Logans are deserving of assistance, and those who have means should come down with the "rocks" and help them out of their present difficulty. Yesterday Mr. Samuel Vantries generously headed the list by subscribing five dollars. Let the good work go on.

—The Howe sewing machine to the front! A telegram received from the International Exhibiton, Sydney, Australia, dated April 15, 1880, says, "Howe highest award." A. C. Moore is the only authorized general agent for Centre county. C. H. Moore is the agent for Bellefonte, and T. B. Johnston for Milesburg. Agents are making a specialty of the new "B" Howe machine, the latest improved sewing machine for family and light manufacturing purposes. The proprietors have spared neither time nor expense in perfecting this machine, and claim that for durability, simplicity, speed, lightness of running and beauty of finish the new "B" has no equal.

—Sturdevant & Co's. mills, at Beaver, seven miles below Julian, were in great danger of being destroyed by fire on Wednesday night. Fires have been raging in close proximity to the mill for several days, and property of the company to the amount of $5,000, including a section of the mill tramway, has already been destroyed. John Ardell, Esq., of this place, was called up at 2 o'clock a. m. on Thursday and summoned to the scene of the conflagration to help save the property, and by hard work the flames were kept away from the buildings.

—Black bass have been sold in Bellefonte during the past two weeks, but just when they were caught and by whom could not be discovered. Yesterday morning Fish Warden Montgomery went up the creek on a tour of inspection, and came upon a fish basket at the old keg mill, near the toll gate. Quite likely at this basket is where the bass were captured, and the authorities now have a pretty good idea who the parties are that are operatidg it. There are more breakers ahead.

Sincere Thanks.

I suffered for five years with Rheumatism. Having been persuaded by friends to try the ST. JACOBS OIL, I must acknowledge that it is the best remedy I ever used; in fact, it cured me entirely. Accept my sincere thanks.

Shot Through the Leg.

Samuel, a young son of Mr. Thomas Rhoads, of this place, was shot by his brother Ambrose early on Friday morning while at play in the back yard. The ball passed through the calf of his right leg, inflicting a severe flesh wound. The weapon was an old pistol that the boys had in some way got possession of, and through careless handling was accidently discharged. This is another illustration of the folly of allowing boys to play with fire arms.

—The Jewell County (Kansas) Republican published by W. W. Brown, formerly of this place, contains this item concerning a former resident of this county: "Jeremiah Furey, formerly of Centre county, Pa., but recently from Dakota, Ill., has been visiting for a few days with Russell Mallory, Esq. Mr. Furey purchased on Monday last the excellent farm of I. Sawin, situated about two miles from this city for $1,800. He is a good farmer and a genial whole-souled fellow."

"My Back Aches So,

and I feel miserably," said a hard-working man. The doctor questioned him and found that he had been habitually costive for years, that now his kidneys were disordered and his whole system deranged. Kidney-Wort was recommended and faithfully taken and in a short time every trouble was removed. The cleansing and tonic power of this medicine on the bowels and kidneys is wonderful.

—It don't make any odds what people say, Samuel Lewins, at the Philadelphia branch, is the man to go to for a real good article in clothing, and cheap at that.

—The firm of Henry & Co., of the Huntingdon car works, offered Murray, Dougal & Co., of Milton, the use of their car works in that place, free of rent, to enable them to fill their contracts. Bellefonte probably never thought of making a similar offer, although we should judge that an offer of our works would be much more acceptable, as we have a fine water power, whereas the Huntingdon works are run by steam.

—The finest assortment of gent's and boys' clothing you ever laid eyes on at Lewins' Philadelphia branch. You'll believe it after examing the goods.

—Mr. John Holmes, of this place, exhibited to us Friday a very neat design of a door plate, of his own get up. The material is of wood, and the plate is similar in construction to those manufactured by a Williamsport firm, the only difference being that the letters are inlaid instead of raised from the surface, and are more serviceable, as the raised letters are liable to be knocked off.

—The Bradford Era tells briefly as follows how some recent fires occurred in that region: A man visited a 25,000 barrel tank with an open lantern and Red Rock was burned. A man built a fire near a well and went to dinner; the destruction of Rew City was the result. A woman upset a gas stove and Rixford went up in smoke, and 60,000 barrels of oil were lost.

—The Lewistown Sentinel is at it again. In speaking of the burning of Whippo's house it says, "the hose of one of the companies was attached to the Methodist church." For a paper that delights in botching things up the Sentinel is no "slouch." Now if it had been the Baptist instead of the Methodist church there might have been some excuse for the blunder.

Sediment or mucus in the urine is a sure indication of disease. Take Kidney-Wort.

—At a fire up in Tioga county recently the owner of the house had presence of mind enough to save a pair of pigs from the flames, but left his mother in law to take care of herself, and she was badly burned before she made her escape. But, then, she was only his mother in law, you see.

Farmers Get Fooled

when they buy Butter Powders and colored salts, and big bottles of cheap coloring stuff, if they expect to get as good a Butter Color, as the Perfected Butter Color made by Wells, Richardson & Co., Burlington, Vt. The others have tried to imitate the excellence of this, the original color, but have wholly failed. Farmers should use only the "Perfected." Sold by Druggists and Merchants generally.

—Mrs. Gothelph, mother of Mrs. Isaac Guggenheimer and Mrs. Abram Sussman, of this place, died on Wednesday night last at the residence of the former on Linn street in her 69th year. The remains of deceased were taken to Philadelphia last night for burial.

Vine Culture and Wine Making.

Mr. Alfred Speer, of Passaic, N. J., so long and favorably known as the wine man of New Jersey, expects a larger yield of grapes this year than usual, and has reduced the price of his four year old Port so as to bring it within the reach of the poorer families who need a pure and rich wine for medicinal purposes. Mr. Speer's mode of fermenting and keeping his wine differs from the usual methods. This is the reason why it is so much superior in quality; but it requires four years management and change of temperature in order to make such a perfect fine wine as this is; the knowledge of changing to various temperatures at different times, and at the right time, is where he has the advantage of getting so rich a wine without the use of liquor. Large quantities of Speer's Port Grape Wine has been ordered to South America, and even to London and Paris. Physicians recommend it as superior to most European wines. It is dealt in largely by druggists.—Daily Express. For sale by John Harris. 20-2t

In Memoriam.

At a regular meeting of Walker Grange, No. 945, P. of H., May 15, 1880, the following preamble, and resolutions were unanimously adopted:

WHEREAS, On the 6th inst., for the second time since our organization in 1874, the angel of death has crossed our portals, and removed from our circle sister Margaret Shamp, wife of our worthy Chaplain, and,

WHEREAS, It seems right and proper that we her surviving members, make some public expression of our feelings, and record our testimony, and appreciation of the many virtues, and excellent traits of character of our deceased sister, therefore,

Resolved, That in the death of sister Shamp we as a Grange, sustain the loss of a true, and faithful matron, the community a warm-hearted friend and the family, and friends, one whom they will long remember with tender emotion.

Resolved, That while we bow in reverence, and humble submission to the will of the great Master above, who has called one of his laborers from labor to reward, we recognize the admonition to us to work while it is called to-day.

Resolved, That we best honor her memory by striving to emulate her virtues, and that we tender to the bereaved family of the deceased, our heart-felt sympathy, and invoke on them the blessings of Him "who doeth all things well."

Resolved, That these resolution be entered on the minutes of the Grange and a copy be presented to the family of deceased, and a copy be furnished The Farmer's Friend, and county papers for publication.

DEATHS.

Mrs. Hannah Swartz, consort of George Swartz, founder of this place died very suddenly on Saturday evening last, of dropsy of the chest. Her remains will be interred at Snydertown on Tuesday (to-day.)

Mrs. James Farley died on Saturday evening at the McCoy & Linn ore bank, 1½ miles east of Hublersburg. She will be buried this (Tuesday) afternoon in the Catholic cemetery at Bellefonte. B.

—May has been a good month for runaways. Yesterday morning a pair of horses hitched to a heavy load of lumber at the rear of the depot, and belonging to a Mr. Bilger, of Pleasant Gap, took fright at a handcar and started into a run. One of the reins breaking the driver was unable to control them, and there's no telling how much damage would have been done had the wagon not struck a stout post in front of the depot, which brought the team to a standstill. The lumber was very heavy, and it took a half-hour of hard work to get free from the post.

—A boy who was climbing up on the new machine shops now being erected for Gordon & Landis, on Saturday evening, fell from a beam to the ground, and alighted in a dirt pile. If it hadn't been for that he would probably have received sufficient injuries to keep him out of mischief for a month, at least.

—A New York doctor says eating ice cream will spoil a girl's complexion and make her feet grow large. Such talk don't amount to much now adays, though, as girls think too much of their cream to give it up for any such trifling defects as those are.

A Quaker shopkeeper once met a Quaker customer of his going home with bundles. He had been absent from his place, and had a notion in his wise head that she had been trading with a rival whom he did not very much love.

"How much did thee give a yard for this, Mary?"

"One dollar."

"Why, I am surprised at thee! I could let thee have it for seventy-five cents. And how much for this?"

"Two dollars."

"Why, that was unreasonable. I could let thee have it for $1.50. Why will thee go away trading with strangers and world's people, Mary?"

"I don't know what thee is talking about friend John," she said; "but I did buy all these things at your store, and if thee tells the truth, thee must owe me considerable money."

The San Francisco Chronicle has ascertained that Chinamen decline to become naturalized because the Chinese Penal Code declares that all persons who renounce their country and allegiance shall be beheaded. The property of all such criminals is to be confiscated, and their wives and children distributed as slaves to the great officers of state. Their parents, grand parents, brothers, and grand childen, whether habitually living with them under the same roof or not, are to be banished to the distance of 2,000 leagues. All who conceal or connive at the crime are to be strangled. Those who inform against the criminals are rewarded with the whole of their property.

WASHINGTON'S DEATH.—A correspondent writes as follows to the Oswego Palladium: "Everybody knows, or is supposed to, when Washington was born, but few know when he died. This fact, stated in a curious way, I came upon in my reading the other day, and publicity may be of service in aiding the memory of small children, if not that of children of a larger growth. Washington drew his last breath in the last hour of the last week of the last month of the last year of the last century. He died on Saturday night, 12 o'clock, December 31st, 1799. He may be, and doubtless was, first in war, first in peace, as we are taught, but in dying he certainly wasn't."

A Frenchman has discovered that the skulls of men are, on the average, one hundred and seventy-two grammes heavier than those of women. This will explain why the average man will permit a woman to stand in a street car, and why, also, so many of them marry and compel their wives to support them. Their skulls are not only heavier, but thicker; but not more so than that of a mule's.

A man who was such a poor shot that several trials showed that he couldn't hit a barn-door at twenty paces, aimed his pistol carefully at a mule and fired, as he knew he shouldn't hit the animal; and though he didn't want the mule, the owner came forward with an axe and decoyed him into buying it, refusing to retain the pelt and make a discount for it.

Town and Country.

The desire to change the quiet, plodding life of the country for the fascinations of the city, is irresistible to a large class of young men, and in its gratification thousands are either hopelessly ruined or grievously disappointed. There is a class of young men who have grown up on their fathers' farms, and must either make a comfortable living at home or by engaging in rural pursuits elsewhere, who can not be restrained from the folly of attempting to try their fortunes in some of the larger cities of the land. They will seek almost any employment, no matter how unremunerative or trying on the physical system, in order to escape from what they mistakenly regard as a life of drudgery. The shop, the counting room and the store are the places usually most attractive to this class. They have not the faintest idea of the kind of life which awaits them there, or the discouragements and difficulties with which they must contend if they achieve success.

The press of New York has just furnished a sad illustration of the folly of young men leaving good homes in the country in order to enjoy the pleasures of city life. It is that of a young clerk who, having found a position after long waiting, was compelled to work in a close, ill ventilated room, from twelve to fifteen hours daily, and whose health gave way under the severe strain. His mind becoming disturbed, he attempted to end his miseries by suicide, and is now an inmate of a hospital, wrecked both physically and mentally. It is said that the chief cause of his mental disturbance was the hectoring and bullying to which he was constantly subjected by those in authority over him. Being of a timid, sensitive nature, he had not the courage to resent nor the hardihood to withstand the insolence of those about him. His country training had utterly unfitted him to battle against such odds, and failure was the inevitable result.

While this may be an extreme case, and while few country boys would expect to encounter so rough an experience, yet it is undoubtedly true that unthought of discouragements and disappointments will await all who seek employment in the cities under the impression that they are going to have a good, easy time of it—nice, pleasant work and plenty of fun. The majority of them will find the very reverse of this to be their experience. They will not be long in finding out that work in the city, at almost any avocation, is real and earnest, and that the "fun" is both limited as to quantity and not of the most desirable quality. They will soon tire of both, and long for the green fields and pleasant woods of the old farm.

It is necessary that many young men who are raised in the country shall seek employment elsewhere. They must either go the cities it they propose to give up farming, or to the new States or Territories if they intend to continue that way of living; but if they seek to better their condition by flocking to the cities they must expect to have as hard rows to hoe as ever they encountered at the old homestead. If they expect to succeed without a struggle they will be doomed to disappointment.

The Value of Wood Ashes.

In estimating the effect or value of an article as a manure, experience or observation is a better teacher than the laboratory. Many years ago I tried the carbonate, the sequi-carbonate, the bi-carbonate and the nitrate of potassia as top-dressings for grass land, side by side with leached wood ashes, and the latter had much the best effect, both immediate and durable, of either article except the nitrate, and the effect of that evidently depended upon its nitrogen. I think there can be no doubt that silica, combined with potassia as it is in wood ashes, acts as a manure, notwithstanding the assertion of some of your correspondents to the contrary.

Thousands of bushels of leached ashes are brought here from Maine every year and sold at twenty-five cents per bushel at the vessel to practical men, who have proved their value beyond a question when thus applied.

The causticity of unleashed ashes may be beneficial to peaty soils, or those having much decayed vegetable matter, and facilitating its decay it may improve such soils. The dissolving of such matter, however, will not make plant food either immediately or directly, but reaches this effect only by aiding the decay or rotting of such matter. Many years ago I tried to convert peat—which is abundant in this vicinity—into manure. I found that a saturated solution of caronate of potash would dissolve every fiber of the peat, and would give a clear liquor of the color of strong coffee; but I could not by dilution or in any other way make that liquor nourish a plant. The potash in unleached ashes may also benefit other soils by rendering some portion of their silica soluble, but it does not follow that it is the active or most beneficial element in wood ashes—Country Gentleman.

Among the stories which are told at St. Petersburg of the attempts made by the Nihilists to penetrate into the Winter Palace is the following: General Gourko, when Governor of St. Petersburg, had the right of entering at any time into the Emperor's room without being announced. Once the doorkeeper, seeing something unusual about his appearance, stopped him, saying that it would be necessary to inform the Emperor of his arrival. The General objected at first, but finding that the doorkeeper only grew more suspicious, ultimately agreed to his being announced. The doorkeeper then told the Emperor of his doubts upon which the latter went to a writing table in his room, which was connected by telegraph with General Gourko's residence, and telegraphed—"Where is Gourko?" "At home," was the reply. This, of course, settled the point; the false Gourko was at once arrested and turned out to be a member of the Revolutionary committee.

George Augustus Sala traveled some 25,000 miles on American railways without the purchase of a single ticket; the roads were too anxious to rush him through and get him out of the country to run the risk of having him miss a train while waiting for his change at the ticket office.

Feminine.

The return of bustles is predicted.

Fancy costumes have parasols and fans to match.

Languedoc is the popular lace for trimming white muslins.

Hoods are to be revived and used to excess on all kinds of wraps.

Rich and substantial fabrics are necessary when plain suits are preferred.

Shoulder-wraps are made quite small and abundantly trimmed with plated lace and jet passementerie.

Coat sleeves of dresses are made very high on the shoulders and stand upward like men's coat sleeves.

Dark blue foulard, polka-dotted with white, makes effective short costumes when faced with dark red.

The great novelty in summer underskirts is made of the new Canton suiting in gay stripes, which suggest awnings.

The Marie Antoinette seemed to be the only pronounced style exhibited at all of the Spring openings for the evening wear.

Country dresses for summer wear are made of light flannels of various colors—navy and peacock blue-gray, olive, maroon and cardinal red.

I do not think there is any more harm in supplying a deficiency of hair than the loss of the teeth, or that it is any greater crime to take off sunburn with harmless preparation than it is to remove a wart.

Rayon is a fashionable color for evening wear; it is a very pale and very luminous yellow. The raven de lune dresses are trimmed with a darker shade of yellow, with gold, copper, saffron and orange.

Health is necessary to beauty, and labor and exercise are necessary to health; it is only when the work becomes excessive—either in duration or the amount and kind of strength required—that it is hurtful.

White quilted satin is most effective for lining glass china cabinets and tables with, and for showing off the flesh tints of delicate colored china. In a royal collection in England the best china is shown off on a background of white satin.

Casaquins made entirely of beads are a delicate novelty. Like the Jerseys they are moulded to the finger, but the beads are so close set the foundation cannot be seen. They are made in ruby, emerald and amethyst, as well as jet, and recall the days of the Amazons.

Dainty morning aprons are made of pretty flowered prints and cambrics, with pockets, a bib and three rows of Languedoc lace edging frills. One corner of the bib and one of the apron is turned back with a bow of colored satin. These aprons are also made in cream-colored muslin and lace. They are square, and average 31 or 32 inches and the bib 8 inches.

SUMMARY OF THE NEWS.

Wilkesbarre, May 17.—Charles Gardella, an organ-grinder, has been arrested charged by a ten year old daughter with having shot dead another daughter five years old, two years ago.

Williamsport, May 17.—An incendiary attempt to burn the large jack mill of Cook & Pardee, was made yesterday by means of an old coat soaked in tar. The fire was discovered by some children and was extinguished without serious damage to the mill.

Erie, Pa., May 18.—The Ryan-Goss fight has been declared off. At the time for starting the principals signed an agreement that both should leave on the same boat taking fifteen men on each side and fight at the most favorable landing place. A tug was chartered with this object in view and both men went aboard. Contrary to the agreement, Ryan's friend swarmed on the boat and those of Goss were unable to get aboard. Aaron then took Goss from the boat saying, "Why, old man, that murderous gang of Hibernians would murder you. If your friends cannot go then you shall not." Goss and Aaron, Tracy, Newell, Edwards, Moran, Arthur Chambers and other, a small army of twenty in all, then left and went up to the hotel. The steamer Hunter and tug Thompson, crowded with pugilists and sports, had proceeded two miles out but returned. Ryan sent after Goss and Aaron, but the latter refused to make any arrangement until he saw Roach. After Roach came in on a tug he waited on Aaron at the Reed house while the crowd on the steamboat lay on the lake waiting for the pugilists. Aaron accused Roach and Ryan of sharp practices in bringing the Ancient order of Hibernians and Emmet guards from Troy with the intention of insuring a victory for Ryan. Roach denied the allegation and said that Ryan was ready to fight anywhere. A long and exciting argument ensued, which resulted in declaring the fight off.

Springfield, May 19.—The convention was called to order promptly at noon by Hon. A. W. Jones, chairman of the State Central Committee. Green B. Raum, commissioner of internal revenue, was then unanimously elected temporary chairman.

Washington, May 19.—The President sent the following nominations to the Senate to day: Horace Maynard, of Tennessee, Postmaster General; James Longstreet, Minister to Turkey; David M. Key, United States district judge of Tennessee.

Philadelphia, May 19.—At a meeting to day in aid of the Milton sufferers it was agreed to send a committee to the burned town to observe the manner of distribution and needs of the unfortunate people. Additional subscriptions were reported to amount to $4,500, making a total to date of $24,000.

Washington, May 19.—In the Senate to day the bill appropriating $25,000 for a new public building at Milton, Pa., was taken up and then passed. The Senate then resumed consideration of the Kellogg case, and Butler, of South Carolina, then spoke against the committee's resolution.

Louisville, May 19.—Yesterday was the first day of the spring meeting of the Jocky Club. There was a large attendance at the races, and the track was good. The first race, a mile and a quarter dash, for a purse of $300 was won by Volturne Time, 2:12½. One Dime coming in second, was the favorite.

Bradford, May 19.—A special from Coudersport, Potter county, says: At three o'clock yesterday afternoon a fire broke out in the rear room of Stebbins Brothers' store used for storing oil. The town is without water supply or fire apparatus, and nothing could be done to check the fire which burned rapidly. By five o'clock every dwelling, store and place of business in the town except the court house, Baker's hotel, Mann's insurance office and the Journal printing office was laid in ashes. About forty buildings were destroyed. Loss probably two hundred thousand dollars. Insurance about seventy-five thousand. No lives reported lost.

Washington, May 19.—J. G. Priest, Wm. H. Barnum and W. L. Scott met here yesterday and held a quiet conference. These gentlemen are warm friends of Mr. Tilden, and have his interest very much at heart. The result of their interchange of opinions was to confirm each of them in the view that Mr. Tilden's strength is increasing daily in every part of the country. A noticeable change in the sentiment with which Democratic Congressmen regard Mr. Tilden has taken place recently. Many of those who were his most violent opponents at the beginning of the session appear now to be of the opinion that it will be the wisest policy to nominate him without opposition.

Shenandoah, May 19.—The roof and top earth at No. 4 colliery of the Philadelphia Coal Company caved in yesterday, and one man was killed and several injured. Thousands of persons flocked to the scene of the disaster. Women whose husbands and sons worked in the mine screamed at the top of their voices. The cause of the accident was that the pillars of a number of breasts had been robbed, and the roof was left without support. Without any warning the roof and surface gave way, causing an internal earthquake that threw the miners around in every direction. The cave in was followed by a rush of water from a large creek, from under which the ground gave way. Fortunately no one was in the immediate vicinity at the time, but the force of the fall was so great that it instantly killed a young man named William Kendic and severely injured James Hope, George Jones, Thomas Bolas, Morris Davis and James Heaton, who were over half a mile out in the gangway at the time. Part of the Philadelphia and Reading railroad was taken down with the fall, and traffic on the road was suspended. Superintendent Olhausen has a force of 500 workmen engaged in raising the road and putting it in shape. A large body of men are also turning the creek into a new channel to prevent the colliery from being flooded. Great excitement prevails in town because of the fact that other mines hereabouts are in danger of going down any moment. Last summer, it will be remembered, about forty houses in the western part of the town sank a distance of eight feet, and this last calamity has again aroused the fears of the inhabitants.

Washington, May 19.—At 6:45 this evening the long and debated question was fully settled, and Edward Hanlan had won the title of champion oarsman of America. The great race—if it may be called a race—occupied just thirty-six minutes and forty-nine and three-fourth seconds by the compution of the official timekeepers, though three seconds less was claimed by parties on the referee's boat.

The start was given by the referee, Mr. Blaikie, with the cautionary "Are you ready?" and three seconds later, "Go," which sent the men away to a beautiful start. Courtney's oars seemed to catch a trifle in advance of his opponent, and with a sturdy, even grip upon the water, sent his boat palpably to the front. For the first half minute he pulled eighteen strokes, or at the rate of thirty-six to the minute, while Hanlan was amid forty one. Before Courtney had pulled ten strokes, however, Hanlan had overhauled him, and each succeeding stroke sent his boat further to the fore.

At the first flag, marking one-eighth of a mile from the start, clear water could just be seen between the stern of his boat and the bow of Courtney's. At this point Courtney turned to look over his shoulder, and evidently realized that he was beaten, he suddenly dropped his stroke to a thirty, and shook his head to some one on the referee's boat—who had shouted to him to pull—saying "It isn't in me." Hanlan also eased up, and pulled steadily at thirty-two to the minute, opening the gap as he pleased. All interest in the race was gone, when Hanlan reached the "three-quarter" flag, fully ten lengths in advance. At the first mile he was pulling thirty-one strokes to the minute, and leading by fully fifteen boat lengths, Courtney laboring unsteadily at about twenty-eight, and frequently casting a despairing glance over his shoulder. Soon after passing the mile flag Courtney stopped rowing, and removed his handkerchief, dipped it in the water, and replaced it on his head; repeated the operation a half dozen times during the next mile. His steering, which at the start was faultless, became more and more erratic, and three of the six flags from the half to the two mile point were either brushed by his oars or run over directly by his boat.

Hanlan reached the two-mile flag in 13 minutes and 31 3-4 seconds, just one-eighth of a mile in advance of Courtney, who stopped finally three-eights of a mile from the turn, or two and one-eighth miles from the start, and turned his boat, pulling leisurely back over the course, and disembarked at his quarters at the Potomac boat-house. Hanlan pulled on to the turning stake, and squared away for the finish in 17 minutes and 54 seconds from the start. On the home Hanlan gradually overhauled Courtney, and the thousands on shore, and upon the boats and steamers which lined the course, not knowing that Courtney had not turned his stake-boat, imagined that the race was still a debatable issue, and rent the air with cheers for their respective favorites. Hanlan, however, soon passed Courtney, and pulled leisurely to the last eighth of the course, when, in respnose to the blowing of whistles and the cheers from thousands of spectators, he quickened to a forty stroke, and exhibited a splendid burst of speed to the finish, which he reached in 36 minutes 49 3-10 seconds from the time of starting.

Pulling up to the referee's boat, Hanlan was awarded the race by the referee, and was cordially congratulated by Mr. Soule, who was a decidedly interested spectator upon the referee's boat. Hanlan then picked his way through the scores of steamers and river craft of every description and reached his quarters at the Analation boat house, where he was received amid the wildest demonstrations of delight, lifted bodily from his boat and carried upon the shoulders of his enthusiastic friends into the boat-house. Riley, who was at the start prepared to enter the race if either Courtney or Hanlan failed to appear, started down the outer edge of the course a few seconds before the word was given, and rowed nearly the entire course in front of Hanlan, increasing his lead to about an eighth of a mile, turning Hanlan's stake and rowing back to the Potomac boat-house, where he disembarked with Courtney. Many people along the course who had not seen the start, supposed from this that Riley was in the race and was winning a great victory over the little Canadian.

Washington, May 19.—Preliminary arrangements for a race between Hanlan and Riley were entered into to-night and it is expected that the articles will be signed to-morrow. A rich sporting man of New York offers to back Riley for $1,000 to $2,000 for Hanlan. Hanlan's backer has accepted. The race will be five miles. If the preliminary arrangements are carried out the race will take place in this city on Wednesday, May 26, over the same course.

The Old Man is Gone.

In a suburban cemetery of Warsaw, were interred, a few weeks ago, the remains of a venerable Pole, whose claim to be the oldest inhabitant of that city had been undisputed for several years previous to his demise. This patriarch had completed his 118th year when he was summoned to his fathers; and, as during his abnormally protracted existence he had suffered no family bereavements, except that which robbed him of his wife, eighty-five years ago; his body was followed to the grave by such a procession of mourning decendants as, at least with respect to its numbers, has probably never before attended the obsequies of a defunct Christian. No fewer than 235 of his children and children's children, even unto the fourth generation, streamed into the churchyard to bid a last adieu to their progenitor. The death of a person who had many grandchildren when the battle of Waterloo was fought, and whose early personal memories included such historical figures as Maria Theresa and Fredrick the Great, is a note-worthy circumstance.

The Manners of Dogs.

It is notorious that dogs take their manners from the human society in which they have been brought up. Thus the coach dog, having associated all his life with grooms and stablemen, is deficient in sagacity and only fit to follow the rumbling of the wheels. Fighting, gripping, and holding on with iron tenacity are the congenial attributes of the bull dog, while the greyhound has little of the reasoning faculty which is born in the colley and sheep dog. A parlor dog, which, like Lever's Mrs. Rooney, "comes o' dacent people," would repudiate the company of a street cur, whom the gentleman and scholar of Burns would nose and find out, just as honest Launce's cur Crab was spotted by the two or three gentlemanlike dogs with which he came in contact under the Duke's table.

Fashion notes.—The coming summer hat for women is to be straw. It will be knocked in on the front, jammed in on the back, shoved in on each side and kicked in on the top. Then the rim will be jammed up all around to make the whole effect harmonious. It will be trimmed with strips of sheet tin, turkey wings, old fruit cans and debris generally. It is an economical kind of hat, as it can be made by taking a boy's old straw hat, running a wheelbarrow over it a few times and hitch it to the first thing that comes handy.

A Good Yeller.—The other day a boy on South Hill yelled so loud that he loosened all his hair at the roots, and when the frightened neighbors rushed in to see what the murder was about, they found he was only calling to another boy, standing just on the other side of a marble ring about six inches wide.

Nobody Welcomed Me.

When I stood up in church and entered into a covenant with the Lord and with the church, and was made a member of the church, then I wanted someone to take me by the hand and tell me that they were glad I had united with the church; but nobody came forward to do so. When meeting was dismissed I stood in the door of the pew and waited a little for some one to come and take my hand and say they were glad I had joined the church, but no one came. I turned into the aisle and passed slowly along, still hoping I should meet some welcoming hand and comforting word, but none came I reached the entry and then the door. Here I paused a little and glanced around, and thought to myself, "Surely some one will say they are glad;" but no one said it.

I went down the steps, hoping, but all in vain. Onward, then, I went yearning for a welcome, and sorrowing for the look of it. I passed into the public square, which was in front of the church, and set my face homeward, but I had not proceeded far before I heard someone behind me calling my name. On turning around an elderly lady was seen hurrying towards me in order to overtake me.

When she came up she said, "I am so glad you have joined the church. I have known your father and mother many years as members of our church, and now I am so glad that you have become a member also," and she put her hand on my head as if to add her blessing.

And I can feel that hand on the top of my head, as it were, to this day. I shall never forget as long as I live the warm and kindly greeting of that old lady. It went to my heart, and has done me good ever since. It does me good to-day.

Such was the preacher's story. O, Christians, greet with a welcome hand and heart the little ones as well as the older ones that unite with your church. Erwin.

I have been using your Cattle Powder for horses, cows, chickens and pigs, and find it a first class thing.—George Bond, Germantown, Pa.

Please send me half a gross of Cattle Powder. I have used two packs on my cow and chickens. The cow gave nearly twice the quantity of milk that she did before, and gave twice the amount of butter. My chickens were dying, but were cured immediately after I had used the powder. Yours truly, Jonas Pasour, Dallas, N. C.

I have used and compared your Cattle Powder with all others, and must say it is the best for horses, cattle, sheep, hogs, &c. I have tried it on poultry for many complaints, with success in every case.—Jonathan Weaver, Berrysburg, Pa.

Last summer you sent me a pack of your powder which I gave to my poultry, and have not had one droopy turkey or chicken since.—Mrs. Wm. Knapp, Orange, N. Y.

Hublersburg Items.

Cyrus Gordon and Abraham Humphreys, of Clearfield, were in town on Saturday, and after procuring a few days' rations for camping, they started for Little Sugar Valley, a beautiful dale among the Nittany mountains, where they are fishing, hunting and reconnoitering—in fact, enjoying a general pioneer life. Mr. G. is a native of this township, a pleasant, agreeable gentleman and a successful lawyer, and would be an honor to the Republican party if nominated for Congress.

Joseph Kessinger and wife spent Sabbath among relatives at this end of the valley.

Wm. Decker and Dr. William C. Goodman, both of Logansville, are here visiting their friends.

Miss Rosa Appt, an esteemed young lady, died on Friday evening and was buried on Sabbath morning in the Catholic cemetery at Bellefonte.

The Dunkards had preaching on Sunday by Brother Albert Steinbarger, of Mifflin county, in the Logan school house.

The farmers are already complaining of the ravages of cut worms on the corn.

Milesburg Items.

Mrs. Fleming Poorman died on Tuesday evening after a lingering illness. Mrs. Poorman's maiden name was Ammerman, and she was well known throughout the county as one of its best instructors of the young. The mourning husband and relatives have the sympathy of their many friends in their bereavement. The funeral took place Wednesday at 9 o'clock, from the residence of Mr. John Poorman.

Misses Alice and Nora Munson and Miss Mary Ambos, of Philipsburg, are making a visit to Milesburg. One of Bellefonte's gallant young men was down the other evening and had one of them out riding. We give him fair warning not to try that again or he'll get himself into trouble.

Howard Items.

On Sunday last the corner stone of the new Fairview Evangelical church near Howard, was laid. There was a large crowd of people there to witness the ceremony.

The citizens of Howard and vicinity responded to the call for help from Milton, and on Wednesday forwarded about two hundred dollars worth of provisions and clothing. The ladies met in Lucas' Hall and made up quite a large quantity of ladies' underwear.

With the thunderstorm Thursday afternoon we had some hail.

A Christian Merchant.

A NOBLE EXAMPLE.

In the city of B., in one of our Eastern States, a certain merchant, whom I will call Mr. A., has a number of stores, so that his counters, if placed in one straight line, would reach to the length of three-quarters of a mile.

I called at his principal store one day.

"Can I see Mr. A?"

"No, sir. He is in his counting-room busy, and the door is locked. He can see no one just now."

"I am very sorry, for this is my only chance, as I leave the city to-morrow."

But my voice reached Mr. A. in his counting room, and he soon came out. We were old friends.

Said he: "You may think it a little unusual, but I like to look after the religious interests of the young men in my employ. One of them has a desire to become a Christian. I took him into my counting room, and was talking and praying with him when you called."

A noble example. His extensive business and manifold cares did not so absorb his attention but that he found time to inquire into the religious wants of his many clerks, with a heart to consult them and pray with them. ERWIN.

BY a recent act of the New Jersey Legislature, the pay of a freeholder, while actually performing the duties of his office, is fixed at $2 a day, and he is forbidden to receive any other allowance or emolument, "directly or indirectly." Hereafter, then, if Jersey freeholders indulge in champagne dinners, they will have to put their hands in their own pockets when the inevitable bill is presented.

MR. GLADSTONE is credited by a Paris paper with chiefly eating fish, "because the diet stimulates the brain." He likewise "takes two glasses of Bordeaux, because that wine is a tonic of the cervical matter. He takes one glass of port, because that is the orator's wine."

State News in Brief.

Lancaster is to have a yarn manufactory.

There is not a vacant cell in the Western penitentiary.

The foundation of the miners' hospital, at Ashland, has been commenced.

A new tannery, covering 25 acres and employing 250 hands, has just been completed at Clearfield.

An illuminated boating carnival will take place on the Lehigh river, at Bethlehem, on Saturday evening next.

Mrs. Frost, of Pittsburgh, aged 60 years, by mistake ate a saucer of oatmeal and arsenic intended to poison mice, and died soon afterward.

On Saturday two gunners found in Thorp's meadow, Frankford, the dead body of a man entirely naked. His head was cut and bloody, and his eyes blackened, as if he had received a terrible beating.

The amount of business done by the merchants and manufacturers of Allegheny county, as returned by Controller Brown within the past few weeks, shows an increase of $1,500,183 over that of the previous year. The entire amount foots up $18,020,356.

The wages of puddlers in all the mills along the Juniata were yesterday reduced fifty cents a ton, and there are anticipations of a strike. In case there is a strike the Harrisburg mills will not be compelled to suspend operations, as they have a large amount of puddled iron on hand.

The meeting of the Grand Lodge of Odd Fellows, in Reading, this week, will be a memorable occasion. This is the first time the grand lodge will have met in Reading. Over nine hundred representatives will be in attendance, a number of whom have been there for several days, and every train going to Reading carries crowds of them.

His Sisters, His Cousins and His Aunts.

A telegram was received in Colorado a few days since directing the proper authorities to arrest a young man who, it was alleged, had run away with his aunt. "I have an order for your arrest," remarked the officer addressing the supposed criminal.

"For what?"

"You have been running away with your aunt."

"My aunt! Why, she's my wife."

"But wasn't she your aunt before she became your wife? You see we don't tolerate those kinds of goings-on in Colorado."

"I suppose you never were in Utah?" remarked the young man, after he had completed his survey of the detective.

"No."

"Well, as you don't understand the relations of an aunt and nephew in that territory, I suppose I ought to explain them to you, and then, perhaps, you may see your duty plainer. My father married, my mother—"

"I suppose so," interrupted the detective.

"Then he married her sister," continued the stranger without heeding the interruption. "Then he married the sister of his brother in law; then the daughter of his uncle, who was a cousin to his first two wives' husbands; then he married her daughter; and a son of his wife married my sister, who was also a widow of one of the other wives' sons. I suppose you are following me?" interjected the narrator.

"Marry your aunt, or your grandmother, or either or both of them," exclaimed the listener.

"And you won' arrest me?" queried the young man.

"No; you might be your own father," answered the officer.

IT is asserted by letter-writers at Hot Springs, Arkansas, that there are more rogues of every degree, confidence men of superior audacity, and young men without visible means of support, to the acre in Hot Springs than in any other section of the country of equal population that can be named. A young clergyman of Texas, who was trying the hot water, found himself in hotter water than he expected. He was invited up the mountain side to see a magnesia spring just discovered. In half an hour he was minus his silver watch and wallet containing all his money.

BARBAROUS FEROCITY.—Near the village of Dubno, Province of Vladimir, Russia, a number of dogs attacked a woman and tore her to pieces. A peasant, who happened to see the woman struggling with the infuriated dogs, and who tried to save her, was nearly killed himself. He was saved by the combined efforts of seven peasants. The dogs belong to a rich man, who takes a barbaric pleasure in keeping the peasants in dread of them.

Food for the Bears.

The other day a lady, accompanied by her son, a very small boy, boarded a train at Little Rock. The woman had a careworn expression hanging over the face like a tattered veil, and many of the rapid questions asked by the boy were answered by unconscious sighs.

"Ma," said the boy, "that man's like a baby, ain's he?" pointing to a baldheaded man sitting just in front of them.

"Hush."

"Why must I hush?"

After a few moments' silence: "Ma, what's the matter with that man's head?"

"Hush, I tell you. He's bald."

"What's bald?"

"His head hasn't got any hair on it."

"Did it come off?"

"I guess so."

"Will mine come off?"

"Sometime, maybe."

"Then I'll be bald, won't I?"

"Yes."

"Will you care?"

"Don't ask so many questions."

After another silence the boy exclaimed:

"Ma, look at the fly on that man's head."

"If you don't hush up I'll whip you when we get home."

"Look! There's another fly. Look at 'em fight; look at 'em!"

"Madam," said the man, putting aside a newspaper and looking around, "what appears to be the matter with that young hyena?"

The woman blushed, stammered out something, and attempted to smooth back the boy's hair.

"One fly, two flies, three flies," said the boy, innocently, following with his eyes a basket of oranges being carried by the newsboy.

"Here, you young hedge-hog," said the baldheaded man, "if you don't hush up I'll have the conductor put you off the train."

The poor woman not knowing what else to do, boxed the boy's ears and then gave him an orange to keep him from crying.

"Ma, have I got red marks on top of my head?"

"I'll slay you again if you don't hush."

"Mister," said the boy, after a short silence, "does it hurt to be baldheaded?"

"Youngster," said the man, "if you'll keep quiet I'll give you a quarter."

The boy promised, and the money was paid over.

The man took his paper and resumed his reading.

"This is my bald headed money," said the boy. "When I get to be bald headed I'll give boys money. Mister, has all bald headed men money?"

The annoyed man threw down his paper, arose and exclaimed:

"Madam, hereafter when you travel leave that young gorilla at home. Hitherto I always thought that the old prophet was cruel for calling the she bears to kill children for making sport of his head, but now I am forced to believe that he did a Christian act. If your boy had been in the crowd he would have died first. If I can't find another seat on this train I'll ride on the cow catcher rather than remain here."

"The bald headed man is gone," said the boy, and the woman leaned back and blew a tired sigh from her lips.

The rage for sunflowers has extended as far as table linen, damask table cloths now showing them in elegant patterns.

Manhood: How Lost How Restored

☞ Just published, a new edition of Dr. Culverwell's Celebrated Essay on the radical cure (without medicine) of Spermatorrhœa, or Seminal Weakness, Involuntary Seminal Losses, Impotency, Mental and Physical Incapacity, Impediments to Marriage, etc.; also, Consumption, Epilepsy and Fits, induced by self-indulgence or sexual extravagance, &c.

The celebrated author, in this admirable Essay, clearly demonstrates, from a thirty years' successful practice, that the alarming consequences of self-abuse may be radically cured without the dangerous use of internal medicine or the application of the knife; pointing out a mode of cure at once simple, certain, and effectual, by means of which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be, may cure himself cheaply, privately and radically.

The following information relative to the tenth census has been compiled, and is published for the information of the people of the district.

J. SIMPSON AFRICA,
Supervisor.

ENUMERATORS.

Each enumerator, after being sworn, will receive from the supervisor a commission which will define the boundaries of his district and authorize him to enter upon the discharge of his duties. These duties cannot be delegated to others.

He is prohibited, under severe penalty, from communicating to any person not authorized to receive the same, any statistics of property or business included in his return; and from wilfully and knowingly make any false certificate or fictitious returns. It is expected that the enumerators will make the authorized inquiries at seasonable times and in a courteous manner, and it is hoped that they will receive prompt and accurate replies. Any person refusing to give the required information is subject to a penalty of $100. The great object of the census is to obtain a true account of the population, wealth and industry of the United States. It is especially desired that the returns for this district shall be as full and complete as possible. The principal inquiries made by the enumerators will be as follows:

INHABITANTS.

The name of each person living in the district on the first day of June, 1880; giving color, sex, age at last birthday, relationship to head of family; whether single, married, widowed or divorced; profession, occupation or trade of persons over ten years of age, and the number of months they were unemployed during year ending June 1; whether sick or disabled, blind, deaf or dumb, idiotic, insane, maimed, crippled, bed-ridden or otherwise disabled. Who attended school during the census year; those over ten years who cannot read and write. Place of birth of each person and place of birth of parents of each; who were married during the year.

PRODUCTIONS OF AGRICULTURE.

Name of person who conducts each farm, whether owner, renter or fixed yearly rental, or for shares of products. Acres of land tilled, in permanent meadows, orchards or vineyards, woodland or other unimproved land. Value of lands, fences, and buildings, value of farming implements and machinery, and of live stock; cost of building and repairing fences, and cost of fertilizers purchased in 1879. Number of weeks of hired labor on the farm in 1879, and amount of wages paid. Value of all farm productions sold, consumed or on hand for that year. Number of acres in grass, barley, buckwheat Indian corn, oats, rye, wheat, flax, hemp, sorghum, broom corn, hops, potatoes, tobacco, apple and peach orchards, nurseries and vineyards and the amount of products of each in 1879. Number of horses, asses, oxen, mules, milch cows, sheep, swine and poultry on hand June 1, 1880. Quantity of milk sold, butter, cheese, wool, eggs, peas, beans, sugar, honey, molasses and wax produced; value of products of orchards, nurseries and market gardens, and amount of wood cut and value of all forest products sold and consumed during 1879.

MANUFACTURES.

Name of individual, corporation or company whose annual products reach $500 annually; name of business, capital invested, number of hands employed, amount of wages paid and hours of labor, months in operation, value of material and value of products; if water power is used, name of stream, fall, number and kind of wheels, horse power, etc. if steam power is used, number of boilers and engines and their horse power.

Statistics of the manufacture of cotton, iron and steel, woolen, worsted and silk goods, and relating to coke, glass, distilleries, breweries, fisheries, mining, churches, libraries, schools, wealth, debt, taxation, newspapers, pauperism and crime will be collected by special agents and not by the enumerators.

MORTALITY.

Name, age, sex and color of each person who died during the year ending with May 31, 1879; whether single, married, widowed or divorced; where born, and birthplace of father and mother of deceased; disease or cause of death; how long a resident of the county, and name of attending physicians.

EXHIBITION OF RETURNS.

After each enumerator has completed his lists, and before forwarding the same to the supervisor, it will be his duty to file with the prothonotary of the proper county a list of the names, with age, sex and color, of all persons enumerated by him, and to give notice by written advertisement at three or more public places in his district, that he will be at the Court House on the 5th day after filing said list (not including Sunday) and on the following day, for the purpose of making any needful corrections in his enumerations.

By order of
GEO. F. HARRIS,
Post Commander.

—William Allison, of Potters Mills, is erecting a fine new residence at Spring Mills, at a cost of $5,000. Now, William is a single man, and the people down there are wondering what in the world he is going to do with such a house. He probably knows, though, and some of his friends, since they have discovered that he shortly intends making a trip to York State, have an idea of what's on the tapis, too. They think it not improbable that William will bring "something" home with him to put into that house to share the ups and downs of life with him hereafter.

—Mr. John Rishel, one of Potter township's flourishing farmers, has erected a new barn on his premises 93 feet in length. Mr. Rishel is extensively engaged in bee culture, in which occupation he has been very successful, having at the present time 49 hives, all in good condition. A short time ago rich veins of pipe ore were discovered on both his farms in the township. The indications point to a valuable deposit, and his intention is to open the veins and operate them.

—Col. Hastings informs us that the ranks of the new military company being organized in this place, to be known as the Bellefonte Fencibles, are now full, fifty-two men, the requisite number, having been placed upon the roll. The papers have been forwarded, and an order for the election of officers will probably be received the latter part of the week.

—The committee chosen to make arrangements for proper observance of Decoration Day in Ferguson township, have secured the services of J. B. Linn, J. L. Spangler, W. C. Heinle and D. F. Fortney, Esq'rs., to deliver the orations at the several cemeteries in the township to be visited.

—Elk county has a human curiosity. In 1862 a man in that county lost a pocket book containing $49. A short time ago the conscience stricken finder acknowledged his sin, and turned over $79, principal and interest, to the loser.

—Two entirely new buggies, one oped top and the other a leather top with gum centres, for sale by H. K. Hicks, at the lowest prices. 20tf

The Knights Templar Excursion.

The Constans Commandery of this place, having decided to visit Williamsport to participate in the Annual Conclave of the Grand Commandery of Pennsylvania, to be held May 25th, 26th and 27th, the following orders have been issued for the information and guidance of the Sir Knights will be strictly enforced:

1st. The Sir Knights of Bellefonte and vicinity will assemble at the Asylum in Bellefonte, on Thursday, May 27th, at 5½ o'clock a. m., sharp.

2d. Each Sir Knight will be in full dress, consisting of black suit, chapeau, baldric, sword, gauntlets, (or buff gloves and cuffs,) and fatigue cap suspended from the sword belt, near the right hip.

3d. The Commandery will take up the line of March from the Asylum at 5:45 a. m., sharp, and proceed to Williamsport by special train, leaving Bellefonte at 6 a. m.

4th. The Sir Knights of New Washington, Clearfield, Philipsburg, Osceola and Tyrone will join the Commandery at Bellefonte, on Wednesday evening, May 26th.

5th. The headquarters of the Commandery while in Williamsport will be in the Park Hotel.

6th. Special orders with reference to the parade, visiting, &c., will be issued after arrival.

7th. The Commandery will be accompanied by the Bellefonte Cornet Band.

8th. The Commandery will be furnished with special car, which will be in charge of the captain of the guard.

9th. All Sir Knights intending to participate in the pilgrimage, upon application to Sir Knights E. W. Hale, John P. Harris or J. C. Harper, committee of arrangements, will be furnished with orders for excursion tickets for themselves and ladies, provided they apply immediately upon receipt of this order.

10th The Commandery in returning will leave Williamsport at 9 p. m, of same day.

11th. It is expected that the Sir Knights will pay strict attention to and punctually obey all orders that may be issued and conduct themselves in a courteous and knightly manner. The Eminent Commander trusts that Sir Knights will allow no excuse to prevent them from participating in this pilgrimage.

12th. A courteous invitation is hereby extended to all true and valiant Templars sojourning in our midst to accompany the Commandery.

13th. The Sir Knights will assemble at the Asylum on Tuesday and Friday evenings of each week for drill.

By Order of the Eminent Commander,
D. H. HASTINGS,
Captain General.

A special train, for the conveyance of Commandery, including Knights from New Washington, Clearfield, Philipsburg, Osceola and Tyrone, will leave this place at 7 o'clock a. m., on the 27th instant, and returning. will leave Williamsport at 9 o'clock p. m. Train will stop at all intermediate stations, if so ordered, but excursion tickets will be issued from Bellefonte only.

The Knights from adjoining towns, who are to join the Commandery at this place, will arrive here on the 10 o'clock train this morning and be assigned their respective quarters during their stay.

During the afternoon the Commandery will repair to the Fair Grounds for drill exercise, and the balance of the day will be devoted to perfecting the arrangement for the excursions. The drill will be an interesting feature, and no doubt many of our citizens will take advantage of the opportunity to witness it.

At six o'clock on Thursday morning the Sir Knights will form in procession at the Asylum and march to the depot, headed by Mountain City Band.

Taken all in all,—the arrival of the Knights on to-day, the afternoon exercises at the Fair Grounds and the parade on Thursday morning,—we don't see but what Bellefonte is going to have about as much of a demonstration and a big time generally as the Lumber City.

—Mr. Andy Cook, the genial book-keeper at the Snow Shoe R. R. office, became tired of "swinging around the circle," and went to work last week and built himself a new foot-bridge over the race at Duncan's foundry, to take the place of the old one lately removed. The new bridge is a marked improvement on the old plank structure, and those who have occasion to use it should tender Mr. C. a vote of thanks.

—Saturday's market was poorly attended, only seven wagons being in. Saturday is usually the best market day in the week, by far, but the rain no doubt prevented a great many farmers from coming in. Beef was about the only article offered in any quantity. Some fair butter was offered at 20 cts; and eggs brought 15 cts.

—The rollicking toad has appeared for the season, and the lady of the house, when she goeth forth for a strool into the garden, clutcheth her garments tightly in one hand and skippeth about on tip toe.

A RICH MUSICAL TREAT.

Concert of the Bellefonte Choral Society and Orchestra.

"Bellefonte the beautiful" never had prouder moment than Tuesday evening, if she only knew it—and we believe a certain proportion of her did partially appreciate the significant fact—and will do better in time. As we heard the thrilling tones welling from instrument and throat, we could not but feel that our town may be, if it is not quite, a very spring or fountain of beauty—not forgetting, by any means, the personnel of the fair portion of the performers.

The entertainment was a complete, we want to say a glorious success—but we don't want to be accused of being rhapsodical. The performers were not professionals, and we are not a professional critic, else we might, perhaps, in accordance with critical custom, point out some faults, or imperfections, which, in our wise judgment, might be amended.

To begin fairly with our notice, we were perfectly astonished at the musical ability displayed by the author and manager of the affair, Miss Natt. No impressario of operatic fame could have better trained and conducted the materials she had to deal with. She was the intelligently ruling spirit throughout, and was ably assisted at the piano by Mrs. Love, and well seconded by the orchestra, which did splendidly, in every respect.

Part first opened with a selection from the Ernani of Verdi by the orchestra, and was followed by the other pieces and the first solo by Mr. Frank Keller—Mrs. Hemans' somewhat questionably truthful compliment to the "Pilgrim Fathers." Mr. Keller has a magnificent bass voice, and could gain renown by the use of it, were he so disposed.

But we can't notice all the pieces, so must omit many things we much wish to say. The conclusion of this part was the delicious cornet solo by Prof. Willis, which the audience seemed to think the gem of the evening, and which called forth the first encore.

Of part second, we find we are obliged by the limits of time and space to skip all mention down to the solo of Miss Kate Curtin. With open windows and other conditions not favorable, the power and quality of this lady's voice astonished us.

"The man that hath no music in his soul,
And is not moved by concord of sweet sounds,
Is fit for treasons, stratagems and spoils."

So we thought, as we listened to Miss Curtin's singing. Of course, the audience demanded an encore, which was No. 2.

Miss Clara V. Lyon sang an exquisite solo, which well suited the fine quality of her voice. So the audience thought, for they demanded an encore.

"That strain again! It had a dying fall.
O, it came o'er my ear like the sweet south
That breathes upon a bank of violets."

They got the "Lass of Kilkarney,' a delicious bit of fine comedy, well suited to the lady's powers.

And so we must stop, with many good things not even mentioned.

"For men must work and printers must sleep"—

But stop; that is not what we intended to quote. We intended to adhere to Shakespeare and say to conslude—not thinking at all about the performers.

"If music be the food of love, play on," etc., but we find we haven't space even for that.

Runaway.

We learn of a somewhat remarkable runaway of a two horse team that occurred out beyond the Boiling Springs on Friday evening of last week—remarkable from the fact that neither the team nor occupants were in any way injured, although the chances for such a result were very favorable. The team belonged to a Mr. Rupert, and was driven by his son William, who, in company with Miss Lizzie Shortlidge, of this place, were on their way to that place.

In coming down the road towards Humes' grist mill from Miller's hill, the horses took fright at a scare crow in a field near by and became unmanageable. Mr Rupert dropped the reins and jumped out, probably with the intention of seizing the animals by the bridle. In this he was unsuccessful, however, and the team dashed down the hill at break neck speed. In not following her companion's example by attempting to jump out, Miss Shortlidge adopted the wisest course under the circumstances, as she would doubtless have been thrown violently to the ground and possibly beneath the wheels. She remained in the seat, clinging tightly to the sides, and let the horses take care of themselves. At Humes' mill some men ran out and attempted to stop the runaway, but did not succeed and the affrighted steeds rushed on out the turnpike, crossing two bridges and marvelously escaped colliding with a large tree on the roadside. At Heaverly & Sweeny's blacksmith shop the reins got entangled in the spokes of the wheel which drew hard on the bit of one horse and turned the carriage around in a circle. Thinking this a good opportunity Miss Shortlidge jumped out, and none too soon, as in a few seconds the buggy was overturned and dragged some distance before the horses were caught. Mr. Rupert soon came up, and as the buggy had not been injured the party took their seats again and proceeded on their journey. Parties who saw the runaway say it was the narrowest escape from a first class smash up, with possible loss of life, they ever witnessed.

—Saturday night was one of the pleasantest nights we have had this season. The moon pured down a flood of silvery light, the trees and garden foliage looked fresh and green from the copious rains, and the perfume of many flowers was borne upon the night breeze. On such a night it is not at all pleasant to be cooped up indoors, and we judge there are a great many of this opinion, as about all of Bellefonte were out enjoying a promenade.

—The largest assortment of hats and caps, ties and shirts are to be found at the Bee Hive.

—The latest swindling operation—fellows going to the country making contracts with farmers to take all the butter during the season at a large price. The usual result: the contract turns out to be a note the farmer has to pay. Sign nothing you do not fully understand.

—John M. McCoy, of Potter' Mills, is making some extensive improvements in his house. The interior is being re-plastered throughout, and papered. He is also building on a new roof, and making other outside improvements.

—A good child's suit at Lyon & Co.'s for $2.00.

—H. A. McKee, Esq., is making some marked improvements at his pleasant residence in Spring township. The interior of the house has been newly painted and papered throughout and the outside is now undergoing the same treatment.

—Nobby straw hats at the Philadelphia Branch.

—A boardwalk caught fire in Osceola on Friday last, and the Reveille thought the whole town was doomed. No such unfortunate result followed, however, and the town is all there yet with the exception of the boardwalk.

—A nearly new truck wagon for sale at H. K. Hick's. 21-tf.

—No menagerie is connected with the New York circus which exhibits at Philipsburg June 2d. They have a gold band, though, and we presume its "the greatest and only" organization of the kind this side of Cairo.

—A new two-horse wagon for sale at H. K. Hick's. 21-tf.

—Mr. David Rhul, formerly a citizen of this place, is now in the hotel business at Potter's Mills. Mr. Rhul is a jovial, good-hearted soul, and just the man, if we are any judge, to make a popular landlord.

—The Climax and Buffalo refrigerators for sale at H. K. Hick's. 21-tf.

—Cultivators, shovel plows, scythes, cradles, forks, rakes and everything else in the hardware line at H. K. Hick's. 21-tf.

The Markets.

BELLEFONTE, May 25, 1880.

The demands made upon our merchants for goods is quite as brisk as during the early part of the season and all our wide awake merchants are doing a fair business.

GRAIN.

The market for wheat is unsettled and prices have a downward tendency. One dollar and ten cents per bushel is the price on the surface; but the "good customers" can command two to five cents better. There is nothing doing in other grains.

At Philadelphia red wheat 1.25@1.26. Amber 1.28@1.29.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Gilt-edged butter is still scarce and prices vary according to quality. Beef. The curb market is the means by which fresh meat is supplied from 3 to 4 cents per pound cheaper than elsewhere. Hay is scarce and commands our quotations. Straw is in sympathy with hay and commands fabulous prices for our market.
